Overview of the post

The University of Oxford intends to appoint to the Lady Margaret Professorship of Divinity with effect from 1 October 2014 or as soon as possible thereafter, following the resignation of the most recent holder, Professor George Pattison. The professor will be a member of the Faculty of Theology and Religion and will also hold a residentiary canonry at Christ Church. Although all previous holders of this chair have been ordained priests, the post has now been opened to suitably-qualified lay people as well as clergy; details are given below.

The Lady Margaret Professorship is one of the most prestigious of the Faculty’s professorships; established from funds bequeathed by the mother of Henry VIII in 1540, it has been held by numerous prominent theologians including John Macquarrie and Rowan Williams.

The successful candidate will have an international reputation and a record of high-level critical scholarship in Christian theology; scholars working in any historical field are encouraged to apply, but the Faculty would particularly welcome applications from experts in patristic theology. She or he will be expected to provide leadership in research in this field, developing existing interdisciplinary connections within Oxford and beyond to enhance the Faculty’s research momentum and global profile. The post-holder will take a central role in graduate teaching (for both taught and research degrees) and will continue existing efforts to increase the strength of the cohort of graduates working on historical theology. Within a multi-disciplinary framework, the successful candidate will make a major contribution to the teaching of mainstream and compulsory elements of the undergraduate syllabus (currently The Development of Doctrine in the Early Church to AD 451 and God, Christ and Salvation) as well as appropriate optional papers. The Faculty welcomes applications from candidates who enjoy working in an interdisciplinary way and who value reflection on the place of their work within the larger field of Theology and Religion.

This is an exciting time to join Oxford’s Faculty of Theology and Religion. The Faculty recently changed its name from Theology to reflect the greater diversity of research and teaching now undertaken by its members, which encompasses the study of religions as well as Biblical Studies and Christian Theology. A major review of the undergraduate curriculum for single and joint honours programmes is currently in progress. The new professor will be able to contribute to that curriculum reform particularly in the development of optional courses taken by students in their final year of study.

Queries about the post should be addressed to Mrs Frances Jenkins, Theology and Religion Faculty Administrator (frances.jenkins@theology.ox.ac.uk) or telephone: +44 (0) 1865 270791. Candidates may also discuss it informally with the Faculty Board Chairman, Professor Sarah Foot by email (sarah.foot@theology.ox.ac.uk) or telephone +44 (0) 1865 286078.

All enquiries will be treated in strict confidence; they will not form part of the selection process.

Duties of the position

The Lady Margaret Professor will be a member of both the University and the College community at Christ Church. She or he will be part of a lively and intellectually stimulating research environment where scholars perform to the highest international levels in research and publication, drawing on the excellent research facilities which Oxford offers. She or he will have a role to play in the running of the College as a member and trustee of its Governing Body.

The professor's duties will include:

Research and academic leadership

- Research and research leadership in an area of historical theology. The Professor will be expected to take a lead in encouraging research achievement and nurturing a research culture in historical theology, and to be active in applying for research funding.

- The professor will be expected to foster a culture of grant application among colleagues also working in historical theology and in the Faculty of Theology and Religion as a whole, as well as taking an active role in relevant development campaigns.

- The professor will be expected to create and maintain links with other Theology and Religious Studies departments in the UK and overseas as well as cognate faculties in Oxford and elsewhere. This may include, for example, organising visits and lectures by leading scholars, fostering individual and collaborative research and teaching projects, or obtaining appropriate funding to support such activities.

Teaching

- The professor will provide at least 36 hours of lectures or classes per year, and provide supervision for Masters and doctoral students. The professor will be expected to offer lectures on aspects of historical theology for undergraduates reading Theology and Religion and the joint degree programmes with Oriental Studies and Philosophy. The professor is also expected to take a key leadership role in the overall administration and delivery of the masters programmes, viz. the nine-month (MSt) and two-year (MPhil) in Theology.

Canonry at Christ Church

- The professorship is annexed to a canonry at Christ Church. The professor will be required to undertake the duties of a canon as detailed below.
Examining

- The professor will be expected to undertake examining for undergraduate and taught graduate programmes and for doctoral theses.

Administration

- All professors are expected to serve often as members of the Faculty Board and of a selection of the Board’s sub-committees; they are normally expected, at some point in their term of office, to take the role of Director of Graduate Studies for a three-year period.

- To co-operate in the administrative work of the Faculty of Theology and Religion, in both term and vacation, under the direction of the Chair of the Faculty Board.

The professorship is held in the Faculty of Theology and Religion. The Faculty is managed by a Faculty Board, led by the Faculty Board Chairman who holds office for a three-year term. The person appointed to the Lady Margaret professorship may be expected to take on the role of Faculty Board Chairman (effectively Head of Department) at some point if asked to do so by the Humanities Divisional Board.

College

- In addition to the duties associated with the Cathedral, the post-holder will be a member of Governing Body at Christ Church College, and will be expected to attend its meetings (three per term), and play a full part in the governance of the College.

Selection criteria

Applications will be judged only against the criteria which are set out below. Applicants should make sure that their application shows very clearly how they believe that their skills and experience meet these criteria.

Oxford is committed to fairness, consistency and transparency in selection decisions. Chairs of selection committees (known as electoral boards) will be aware of the principles of equality of opportunity and fair selection and there will be at least one member of each gender on the board wherever possible.

The selection criteria for this post are as follows:

- A doctorate and a distinguished record of research in a relevant field together with concrete future research plans in an area of historical theology, and an international reputation which will contribute to and enhance the profile of the subject and of the Faculty of Theology and Religion.

- Membership of the Church of England, or of a church in communion with it, and willingness and ability to perform the liturgical and other duties of a residentiary canon of Christ Church Cathedral.

- Demonstrable plans for an on-going research agenda which will result in further substantial publications of recognised international quality during the tenure of the chair.

- The ability to demonstrate research leadership, including leading by example, taking a lead in encouraging research achievement and nurturing a research culture, including the obtaining of research grants.

- A record of obtaining external funding for individual research or larger projects.
• A commitment to providing effective teaching and to fostering a high level of achievement at undergraduate and postgraduate level.

• A record of successful graduate teaching and supervision, including experience of graduate taught courses, and of the successful supervision of doctoral theses.

• Experience of university governance and management, and of academic administration.

• Ability to communicate effectively (in writing and orally).

• Readiness to play a leading role in stimulating and developing the study of historical theology at all levels within the Faculty of Theology and Religion and to communicate the central interest and importance of the subject to a wider public.

• Willingness and ability to create and maintain links with Theology and Religious Studies departments elsewhere in the UK and abroad, and with cognate faculties in Oxford.

How to apply
There is no application form. Applications must include:

• your full contact details including email and full postal addresses, and a telephone number

• a covering letter or statement explaining how you meet the criteria set out above

• a full CV and list of publications

• an indication of where you first heard about this post

• the names and contact details (postal and e-mail addresses and telephone number) of three referees.

You should contact all three of your referees before applying, to ensure they are aware of your application and of the requirements for the post, and to ensure that they would be content to write a reference for you for this post, if they were asked to do so.

The University will assume that it is free to approach your referees at any stage unless your application specifies otherwise. Therefore if you would prefer a referee or referees to be approached only with your specific permission or if you would prefer them to be approached only if you are being called for interview on the final short list, then you must state this in your application, alongside the details of the relevant referee(s). You should provide the names and full contact details of three referees even if you do not wish them to be contacted yet.

If you are shortlisted but only Oxford references are available for you, you will be asked at a later stage to provide the name of an additional referee outside Oxford.

Applications should be sent by email to Mrs Anna Malkin, Personnel Officer, Senior Appointments at professorships@admin.ox.ac.uk.

The deadline for applications is Monday 27 January 2014.

Should you have any queries about how to apply, please contact Mrs Elaine Eastgate at professorships@admin.ox.ac.uk or telephone: +44 (0) 1865 280189.
The full membership of the board of electors will be published in the University Gazette (http://www.ox.ac.uk/gazette/) when it is finalised. All applications will be acknowledged after receipt and will be considered by the board of electors as soon as possible after the closing date. The board is free to search for other candidates at this or any subsequent stage in its proceedings. All shortlisted candidates will be interviewed and will be asked to give a short presentation to the electors as part of the interview. The board's decision will be communicated as soon as possible after the interview but in some cases there may be a delay while deliberations are ongoing.
Further Information: The Canonries of Christ Church, Oxford

A Canonry of Christ Church is annexed to the Lady Margaret Professorship of Divinity.

1. Christ Church was originally founded by Cardinal Wolsey. When he fell from power, Henry VIII stamped it with the royal supremacy by making a new Cathedral out of the former priory church of St Frideswide which still stood next to Wolsey’s hall and quadrangle, and setting its Dean and Canons over the students - meaning the entire educational population of the college, tutors and taught. This arrangement lasted from 1546 until 1867 when the tutors, after three centuries without a voice in the government of Christ Church, secured the right to be members of a Governing Body of the College, like their colleagues in other Oxford colleges. The Canons were put on the Governing Body too, while also being members of the Cathedral Chapter, whose rights remained. This arrangement continues today.

2. The Canonry annexed to the Lady Margaret Professorship was formerly the preserve of clergy of the Church of England, but is now open to:

- lay members of the Church of England;
- or of any church in communion with it;
- or ministers or lay members of a Church not in communion with the Church of England provided they are suitably qualified members of one of the churches to which the Church of England (Ecumenical Relations) Measure 1988 refers;¹
- or those ordained in Priest’s Orders in the Church of England or in an Episcopal Church in communion with the Church of England.²

3. Christ Church has six canonries, four annexed to professorships, one annexed to the archdeaconry of Oxford and one held by the Sub-Dean who assists the Dean in day-to-day Cathedral affairs. The Canons are members of the Governing Body of Christ Church, which is chaired by the Dean and may be invited to serve on college committees. They are ex officio members of the Benefices Committee (which deals with the patronage of Christ Church livings) and Governors of the Cathedral School.

4. The Dean and the six canons (together with a diocesan canon, who has responsibilities in both diocese and cathedral), meet as a Chapter three times each term to discharge the business of the Cathedral Church, which is exclusively their responsibility. The Organist, Precentor, Cathedral Registrar and College Chaplain are usually there to advise them.

5. The duties of a canon include cathedral residence and preaching. The canons share the residence so that each, on average, and on the assumption of six canons in post at any one time, is in residence for eight or nine weeks of the year, divided into separate periods of a week (from Monday to the following Sunday inclusive).

Canons take their turn in preaching, or supplying a preacher, at Matins on Sundays in term time. When canons are in residence in the vacations they are responsible for preaching, or supplying a preacher, at Matins on Sundays.

¹ A list of the churches to which the Church of England (Ecumenical Relations) Measure 1988 refers is supplied as Appendix A below, p. 14.
² Appendix B below (pp. 14-15) lists the churches with which the Church of England is in communion. Candidates with queries about their eligibility are invited to consult the Dean of Christ Church in confidence.
The other duties of the canon in residence are:

(a) to be present at Matins and Evensong on Sundays and weekdays, to read the appointed lesson (or lessons), and to lead the prayers at Evensong each weekday;

(b) to be available to represent the Dean and Chapter at special services and to deal with other necessary business that may arise, such as greeting occasional special visitors;

(c) to seal official documents, on behalf of the Governing Body at the request of the Treasurer of Christ Church.

A canon takes his or her turn as Canon Treasurer and/or in undertaking such other Chapter duties as the Dean and Chapter may determine in consultation with him or her.

A canon, if a priest of the Church of England, or any church in full communion with it, or other appropriately authorised Anglican priest, also takes his or her turn in preaching at the Sung Eucharist on Sundays, in celebrating Holy Communion on Sundays and weekdays, and in assisting at the Sung Eucharist on Sundays.

A canon, if not a priest of the Church of England (i.e. a Lay Canon) is welcome to undertake such additional ministerial and pastoral responsibilities as may be agreed with the Dean and Chapter and are permitted by the Canon Law and regulations of the Church of England.

6. The contribution of Christ Church to a canon professor’s total stipend is equal to the stipend fixed annually by the Church Commissioners for a residentiary canon. The rest of the professorial salary is paid by the University.

7. A canon professor is required to live in one of the canonical houses of Christ Church which are provided free of rent, council tax, and the cost of structural maintenance.

8. Further information on Christ Church or on the canonries may be obtained on confidential basis from The Dean, The Very Reverend Christopher Lewis, The Deanery, Christ Church, Oxford OX1 1DP. Telephone: 01865-276161 (after hours 276162); email: christopher.lewis@chch.ox.ac.uk. Candidates are urged not to hesitate to raise any queries they may have, especially as they may relate to the scope of a Canon’s duties or the eligibility for this appointment of someone not in Anglican Orders.
Essential Information for Applicants for the Lady Margaret Professorship of Divinity

The University
The University of Oxford aims to sustain excellence in every area of its teaching and research, and to maintain and develop its position as a leader amongst world-class universities. Placing an equally high value on research and on teaching, the colleges, departments and faculties of Oxford aspire both to lead the international research agenda and to offer a unique and exceptional education to our undergraduate and graduate students.

Oxford’s self-governing community of scholars includes university professors, readers, and lecturers, college tutors, senior and junior research fellows and over 2,500 other university research staff. The University aims to provide facilities and support for colleagues to pursue innovative research and outstanding teaching, by responding to developments in the intellectual environment and society at large, and by forging close links with the wider academic world, the professions, industry and commerce. The Strategic Plan, detailing strategy for the period 2008-13, can be found at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/pras/planning.

Research at Oxford combines disciplinary depth with an increasing focus on inter-disciplinary and multi-disciplinary activities addressing a rich and diverse range of issues, from deciphering ancient texts and inscriptions using modern scientific and computational methods developed in Oxford, through to global health, climate change, ageing, energy and the effects on our world of rapid technological change.

Oxford seeks to admit undergraduate students with the intellectual potential to benefit fully from the college tutorial system and small group learning to which Oxford is deeply committed. Meeting in small groups with their tutor, undergraduates are exposed to rigorous scholarly challenge and learn to develop their critical thinking, their ability to articulate their views with clarity, and their personal and intellectual confidence. They receive a high level of personal attention from leading academics.

Oxford has a strong postgraduate student body which now numbers 10,000, nearly 45% of the full-time students. Postgraduates are attracted to Oxford by the international standing of the faculty, by the rigorous intellectual training on offer, by the excellent research and laboratory facilities available, and by the resources of the museums and libraries, including one of the world’s greatest libraries, the Bodleian.

The Humanities Division
The Humanities Division is one of four academic divisions in the University of Oxford, bringing together the faculties of Classics; English; History; Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics; Medieval and Modern Languages; Music; Oriental Studies; Philosophy; and Theology and Religion, as well as the Ruskin School of Drawing and Fine Art. The division has responsibility for over 500 members of academic staff, for over 4,000 undergraduates (more than a third of the total undergraduate population of the University), and for about 1,600 postgraduate students.

The Division offers world-class teaching and research, backed by the superb resources of the University’s libraries and museums, including the famous Bodleian Library, with its 11 million volumes and priceless early book and manuscript collections, and the Ashmolean Museum of Art and Archaeology. Such historic resources are linked to cutting-edge agendas in research and teaching, with an increasing emphasis on interdisciplinary study.
The Division’s faculties are among the largest in the world, enabling Oxford to offer an education in Arts and Humanities unparalleled in its range of subjects, from music and fine art to ancient and modern languages.

The Faculty of Theology and Religion

The University is organised into about 140 different departments, each of which recruits its own staff. This post is in the Faculty of Theology and Religion, which has its office at 34 St Giles’. Theology and Religion is one of the oldest faculties in Oxford; Alexander Neckham from St Albans is recorded as giving biblical and moral lectures as early as 1193 on The Psalms of David and the Wisdom of Solomon. The modern Faculty is large, with 25 academic staff (professors and lecturers), and around 130 other Faculty members, who hold positions in colleges and halls of the University. The range of academic research interests encompasses biblical studies, ethics, Christian doctrine and Church history, as well as science and religion, philosophy, the psychology and sociology of religion, Islam, Buddhism, Judaism, Hinduism, and Christian spirituality. Many have international reputations.

Oxford is consistently ranked among the top three best Theology/Religious Studies departments in the country (and topped the table most recently in the 2012 Complete University Guide). With some 390 students on different undergraduate courses, and around 280 graduates pursuing both taught and research degrees, there is scope for a great deal of diversity as well as depth of study.

Christ Church

There are 38 self-governing and independent colleges at Oxford, giving both academic staff and students the benefits of belonging to a small, interdisciplinary community as well as to a large, internationally-renowned institution. The collegiate system fosters a strong sense of community, bringing together leading academics and students across subjects, and from different cultures and countries.

Christ Church (often referred to as ‘The House’) is a unique joint foundation of a college in the University of Oxford and the Cathedral of the Diocese of Oxford. It is one of the largest of the Oxford Colleges and has evolved over five centuries. Its Junior Members, both undergraduate (over 400) and graduate (over 200) students, cover most of the major academic disciplines in the Arts, Sciences and Social Sciences. It aims at academic excellence and individual fulfilment in a friendly, tolerant and mutually supportive environment. More general information about the College may be obtained at www.chch.ox.ac.uk. In addition Christ Church gives a college base to several senior University Professors and sponsors research by the appointment each year in open competition of two Junior Research Fellows in the Sciences and two in the Arts and Social Sciences.

The post-holder will be a full member of the college’s governing body which meets three times a term, as does the Chapter of which the professor is also a member. The professor will also become a full member of the Senior Common Room (for which a modest charge is levied each quarter) and of High Table, entitling him or her to free lunch and dinner in College when the kitchens are open. The post-holder will be eligible to apply to the Governing Body for limited grants towards certain research and conference expenses and will be able to use shared academic support facilities for his or her academic work without charge.
The college has a tutorial fellow in Theology and Religion, Dr Mark Edwards, as well as the four canon professors. There is also usually a Career-Development Fellow in Christian Ethics attached to the McDonald Centre for Theology, Ethics and Public Life which is located in Christ Church and directed by Canon Professor Nigel Biggar; see http://mcdonaldcentre.org.uk/. Christ Church has a lively group of undergraduate and graduate students in Theology and Religion, and it is hoped that the new professor will maintain an interest in the theology community in Christ Church at all levels.
Standard Terms and Conditions

Standard duties

(i) to lecture, or hold classes, in at least two of the three university terms and to give at least thirty-six lectures or classes in all and not less than twelve in each of two terms; and

(ii) to undertake research and original work and the general supervision of research and advanced work in your subject and department, and to assist students in their studies by advice or informal instruction.

It is expected that professors will generally participate in the business and affairs of the relevant faculty or department.

Salary, benefits and pension

The salary of the person appointed will be determined by the Vice-Chancellor, after appropriate consultation. In addition the professor will be eligible for consideration, in regular reviews, for one of a number of additional salary awards which may be made in recognition of outstanding academic distinction and/or contribution to the academic work of the University (e.g. in leadership in, or in the development of, some field of study).

The salaries of professors at Oxford are generally above the average of those in other leading UK universities.

An additional pensionable allowance will be payable in respect of any period during which the professor is Head of Department/Faculty Board Chairman. (Any allowance payable for a period of less than three years will not, however, be pensionable.)

Eligible staff may join the Universities Superannuation Scheme. Details are available on the website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/finance/pensions/uss/.

Length of appointment

The professorship is tenable until retirement. For all academic staff the University has adopted a retirement age of 30 September before the 68th birthday. There is a procedure for requesting an extension of employment beyond that date.

Sabbatical leave and outside commitments

All professors may apply for sabbatical leave to allow them to focus on their research. In general, one term of leave is available for each six terms worked. This leave may either be taken as one term of leave after 6 terms of service, or accumulated and taken as one year of leave after 6 years of service.

Professors may also spend up to 30 working days in each year on projects outside their employment duties, such as consultancy, spin-out activity and membership of research councils and other bodies. There is no limit to the amount of money which staff may earn from these activities. Full details are available on the university website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/staffinfo/academic/approvaltoholdoutsideappointments/

Guidance on ownership of intellectual property (http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/statutes/regulations/182-052.shtml) and managing conflicts of interest (http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/researchsupport/integrity/conflict/policy/) is also available on the university website.

Relocation expenses

Subject to HMRC regulations and the availability of funding, a relocation allowance may be available. Further details are available on the website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/finance/expenses/relocationscheme/.
Family support

The University has generous maternity and adoption leave arrangements, and also offers support leave to fathers and partners. Additional paternity leave of up to 26 weeks (for children born or placed for adoption after 3 April 2011) is available where parents decide to share the 52 week maternity leave entitlement. Details are available on the website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/during/family/.

All staff are eligible to apply to use the University nurseries (although there is a long waiting list for nursery places), and the full range of tax and National Insurance savings scheme is in operation. Details are available on the University’s childcare website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/eop/childcare/.

The University will try to accommodate flexible working patterns as far as possible and there is considerable flexibility in the organisation of duties. More information on family support and flexible working policies is available on the website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/during/family/.

Information for parents and carers is available at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/eop/parentsandcarersinformation/.

Facilities and services

The University has a range of facilities and benefits for its staff; more details are available on the website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/staffinfo/benefits/.

The University Disability Office provides support to staff and students with a disability and may be contacted through its website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/eop/disab/.

Equality of opportunity

The policy and practice of the University of Oxford require that all staff are offered equal opportunities within employment. Entry into employment with the University and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit and the application of criteria which are related to the duties of each particular post and the relevant salary structure. In all cases, ability to perform the job will be the primary consideration. Subject to statutory provisions, no applicant or member of staff will be treated less favourably than another because of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation.

Medical questionnaire and the right to work in the UK

The appointment will be subject to the satisfactory completion of a medical questionnaire and the provision of proof of the right to work in the UK.

Applicants who would need a work visa if appointed to the post are asked to note that they may need to enter the UK under the Tier 1 (Exceptional talent) category of the UK’s points-based system. Further information is available at: http://www.ind.homeoffice.gov.uk/workingintheuk/tier1/exceptional-talent/.

Particular arrangements

Oxford welcomes applications from candidates who have a disability. These documents will be made available in large print, audio or other formats on request. Applicants invited for interview will be asked whether they require any particular arrangements to make the interview more convenient and effective for them.
Data Protection

All data supplied by candidates will be used only for the purposes of determining their suitability for the post\(^3\) and will be held in accordance with the principles of the Data Protection Act 1998 and the University’s Data Protection Policy (available on the website at http://www.admin.ox.ac.uk/councilsec/dp/policy.shtml).

\(^3\) But NB if the person appointed to the post is a migrant sponsored under the UK’s points-based migration system, we are required to retain the applications of all shortlisted candidates for one year or until a UK Border Agency compliance officer has examined and approved them, whichever is the longer period.
