

Course Information Sheet for entry in 2018-19

MPhil in Late Antique and Byzantine Studies

About the course

This two-year course has been devised as a multi-purpose introduction to the Roman world in Late Antiquity, to Byzantium, the medieval successor of the East Roman Empire, and to neighbouring peoples and their cultures.

This is a two-year taught course that can be taken as a free-standing degree, or as the first step towards doctoral research. The course includes the completion of a 30,000-word dissertation.

You have the option of selecting a focus of study dependant on your knowledge of languages or on your primary interests in the field. Two basic pathways lead into each field of study, one in language training and one in auxiliary disciplines, and you are expected to choose between them at the beginning of the course.

The first is the language training pathway which offers intensive training in any one of the following ancient and medieval languages:

- Greek
- Latin
- Slavonic
- Armenian
- Syriac
- Coptic
- Arabic.

The second pathway is designed for those who already have considerable competence in their chosen language and are able to read the primary sources . You will receive instruction in one or two of a range of specialist auxiliary disciplines of papyrology, epigraphy, palaeography, numismatics, sigillography or artefact studies and you will choose a special subject from a list in your preferred subject area, ie in either history, art and archaeology, literature or religion.

Teaching and examination comprises three papers in the first year of the MPhil:

- for all students, a core paper on history, art and archaeology or history and Byzantine literature comprising two sets of weekly classes taken in the first two academic terms and examined on the basis of two 5,000-word essays on topics of your choosing, subject to the approval of your supervisor, submitted at the end of Trinity term; and
- for those taking the language pathway, intensive courses in both language and literature with examinations at the end of the year; or
- for those taking the other pathway, instruction in one or two auxiliary disciplines and also in a special subject 10,000-word dissertation on a topic of your choosing, subject to the approval of your supervisor, submitted at the end of Trinity term.

Language and literature as well as auxiliary disciplines will normally be examined by unseen examinations at the end of Trinity term, while attainment in other subjects are assessed on the basis of submitted essays or dissertations submitted at the end of Trinity term.

Teaching and examination comprises two papers in the second year of the MPhil:

- a thesis of not more than 30,000 words, written during the second year on a subject approved by your supervisor, submitted at the end of Trinity term; and
- either a special subject 10,000-word dissertation on a topic of your choosing, subject to the approval of your supervisor, submitted at the end of Trinity term, or one or two auxiliary disciplines or one of the language papers on offer (Greek, Latin, Slavonic, Armenian, Syriac, Coptic, Arabic), examined at the end of Trinity term.

Please note that not every optional subject listed may be on offer every year, depending in part on levels of student demand. Full details of core and optional papers available are available on the course webpage.

Although the two components of the course, Late Antiquity and Byzantium, have been designed to the same specification and are conjoined in a single course, you are expected to concentrate on one or other of the fields.

If you wish to apply for the DPhil you will be encouraged to develop your doctoral proposal in consultation with your supervisor during the first few months of your second year, so that you will be well placed to make a doctoral application.

You should not apply to both the MSc and MPhil in this research area. Both courses have the same entry requirements.

Changes to courses

The University will seek to deliver this course in accordance with the description set out above. However, there may be situations in which it is desirable or necessary for the University to make changes in course provision, either before or after registration. For further information, please see the University's Terms and Conditions.

Expected length of course

21 months

Costs

Annual fees for entry in 2018-19

| Fee status                     | Tuition fee | College fee | Total annual fees |
|--------------------------------|-------------|-------------|-------------------|
| Home/EU(including Islands) | £7,620      | £3,112      | £10,732           |
| Overseas                       | £19,915     | £3,112      | £23,027           |

The fees shown above are the annual tuition and college fees for this course for entry in the stated academic year; for courses lasting longer than one year, please be aware that fees will usually increase annually. Information about how much fees and other costs may increase is set out in the University's Terms and Conditions.

Tuition and college fees are payable each year for the duration of your fee liability (your fee liability is the length of time for which you are required to pay tuition and college fees).

Additional cost information

There are no compulsory elements of this course that entail additional costs beyond fees and living costs. However, as part of your course requirements, you may need to choose a dissertation, a project or a thesis topic. Please note that, depending on your choice of topic and the research required to complete it, you may incur additional expenses, such as travel expenses, research expenses, and field trips. You will need to meet these additional costs, although you may be able to apply for small grants from your department and/or college to help you cover some of these expenses.

Living costs

In addition to your tuition and college fees, you will need to ensure that you have adequate funds to support your living costs for the duration of your course.

The likely living costs for 2018-19 are published below. These costs are based on a single, full-time graduate student, with no dependants, living in Oxford. We provide the cost per month so you can multiply up by the number of months you expect to live in Oxford.

|                          | Likely living costs for 1 month |             | Likely living costs for 9 months |             | Likely living costs for 12 months |             |
|--------------------------|---------------------------------|-------------|----------------------------------|-------------|-----------------------------------|-------------|
|                          | Lower range                     | Upper range | Lower range                      | Upper range | Lower range                       | Upper range |
| Food              | £258                            | £361        | £2,318                           | £3,245      | £3,090                            | £4,326      |
| Accommodation     | £536                            | £677        | £4,824                           | £6,093      | £6,432                            | £8,124      |
| Personal items    | £118                            | £263        | £1,066                           | £2,364      | £1,421                            | £3,152      |
| Social activities | £41                             | £123        | £369                             | £1,105      | £492                              | £1,474      |
| Study costs       | £39                             | £85         | £348                             | £765        | £464                              | £1,020      |
| Other             | £22                             | £47         | £202                             | £419        | £269                              | £559        |
| Total             | £1,014                          | £1,556      | £9,127                           | £13,991     | £12,168                           | £18,655     |

When planning your finances for any future years of study at Oxford beyond 2018-19, you should allow for an estimated increase in living expenses of 3% each year.

More information about how these figures have been calculated is available at www.graduate.ox.ac.uk/livingcosts.