

OXFORD UNIVERSITY

CLASSICS ADMISSIONS TEST

Wednesday 7 November 2012

INSTRUCTIONS TO CANDIDATES

This booklet contains all the tests required for Classics, in this order:

- 1 Latin Unseen Translation
- 2 Greek Unseen Translation
- 3 Classics Language Aptitude Test (CLAT)

Time allowed

You have one hour (60 minutes) per test.

If you need to take two tests, you should complete them in the order in which they appear in the booklet (the same order as they are listed above). No courses require all three tests.

Your supervisor will notify you when you should begin the second test.

Question papers

The Latin and Greek translation test papers each contain two passages. Please write your translations on the answer sheets provided.

The Classics Language Aptitude Test (CLAT) is five pages long.

The answer sheets are printed on perforated sheets which should be detached from the booklet after you have finished. Do not attempt any tests not required for your course; no extra credit can be gained.

If you are studying Latin or Greek to A-level or equivalent school-leaving qualification you should take the test(s) in the language(s) you are studying. If you are unsure which test(s) you should be taking your supervisor can advise you.

You can use the blank pages in the booklet or separate paper for rough workings or notes, but only answers in the spaces in the papers will be marked. If you make a mistake and need to start again on one of the translation passages, use a separate sheet and ensure that the requested candidate information is written at the top.

No dictionaries of any kind are permitted.

In the box at the top of each answer sheet, you should fill in (1) your UCAS Personal ID, (2) your name, (3) the Oxford college you chose or were allocated and (4) your date of birth. For the Classics Language Aptitude Test (CLAT) you should also state your first language (mother tongue). Your supervisor will also have a record of your UCAS Personal ID if you do not have it.

In a dream Love appears in nightmarish form to Ovid, who seeks to reprimand him.

nox erat et bifores intrabat luna fenestras, mense fere medio quanta nitere solet.
publica me requies curarum, somnus, habebat, fusaque erant toto languida membra toro,
cum subito pennis agitatus inhorruit aer et gemuit parvo mota fenestra sono.
territus in cubitus relevo mea membra sinistrum,
pulsus et e trepido pectore somnus abit.
stabat Amor, vultu non quo prius esse solebat,
fulcra tenens laeva tristis acerna manu, horrida pendebant molles super ora capilli et visa est oculis horrida penna meis.
hunc simul agnovi—neque enim mihi notior alter—talibus adfata est libera lingua sonis.

Tullius warns that the crowds of Volscians at the festival could create an incident, and they are ordered to leave, causing first consternation and then anger.

'magna hic nunc Volscorum multitudo est; ludi sunt; spectaculo intenta civitas erit. memini quid per eandem occasionem ab Sabinorum iuventute in hac urbe commissum sit. horret animus, ne quid inconsulte ac temere fiat. haec prius dicenda vobis, consules, ratus sum. quod ad me attinet, extemplo hinc domum abire in animo est, ne cuius facti dictive contagione praesens violer.' haec locutus abiit, factoque senatus consulto ut urbe excederent Volsci, praecones dimittuntur qui omnes eos proficisci ante noctem iuberent. ingens pavor primo discurrentes ad suas res tollendas in hospitia perculit. proficiscentibus deinde indignatio oborta, se ut consceleratos contaminatosque ab ludis, festis diebus, coetu hominum deorumque abactos esse.

The Thebans are encouraged by the success of the Arcadians to attack Sellasia, but after seeing Spartan hoplites in the temple of Alea they do not enter the sparsely-defended city.

Classics Language Aptitude Test (CLAT)

Time allowed: 1 hour

Try to answer all the questions in all three sections; but do not spend too much time on any question with which you may have difficulties. Write your answers in the spaces provided on the paper. (You may, if you wish, also write your rough work on the paper.) Please take care to write very clearly.

Section A [25 marks]

1. Akkadian was spoken in ancient Mesopotamia. Consider the following forms of some Akkadian nouns (note that sometimes there are two possibilities for the construct state):

	nominative	construct state		nominative	construct state
'man'	awīlum	awīl	'road'	ḥarrānum	ḥarrān
'head'	qaqqadum	qaqqad	'field'	eqlum	eqel
'hand'	qātum	qāti / qāt	'ox'	alpum	alap
'dog'	kalbum	kalab	'farmer'	ikkarum	ikkar
'base'	išdum	išid	'ear'	uznum	uzun
'army'	šābum	šābi / šāb	'room'	kummum	kummi
'lord'	bēlum	bēli / bēl	'nose'	appum	appi
'centre'	libbum	libbi	'god'	ilum	ili / il
'eye'	īnum	īni / īn	'silver'	kaspum	kasap
'mother'	ummum	ummi	'house'	bītum	bīti / bīt

What would you expect to find as the construct state forms corresponding to the following nominative forms? (If there are two possible forms, please give both.)

	nominative	construct state
'neck'	kišādum
'copy'	meḥrum
'country'	mātum
'work'	ipšum
'writing tablet'	ṭuppum
'manservant'	wardum

Now consider the following Akkadian phrases:

'the man's head': qaqqad awīlim

'the mother's room': kummi ummim

'the centre of the field': libbi eqlim

'the lord of the house': bēli bītum / bēl bītum

How would one say the following in Akkadian? (If there are two answers, please give both.)

'the farmer's dog'

'the work of the manservant'

'the lord's house'

2. In Sanskrit, an ancient language of India, the spelling of a word is not identical in all the sentences where it is found. This question will focus on what happens to consonants at the ends of words.

Background Information on the Sanskrit Consonants

Sanskrit has a series of so-called 'voiceless' consonants, including t, p, k, and c (pronounced like the final sounds in English rat, rap, rack, and lurch respectively). There is a corresponding set of 'voiced' sounds: d, b, g, and j (pronounced like the first sounds in English dam, bile, gum, and jam respectively).

We can also group sounds together according to the position adopted by the tongue and the lips when they are pronounced: the tongue and lips are in the same position in the mouth when pronouncing t and d (called dentals); when pronouncing k and g (called velars); when pronouncing p and b (called labials); and when pronouncing c and j (called palatals).

Vocabulary

The vocabulary below shows the basic forms of some words (the forms used in isolation):

agacchat 'he went (to)'	etat 'this'	phalaṃ 'fruit'
āgacchat 'he came (to)'	evam 'so'	pībati 'he drinks'
apaśyat 'he saw'	gānaṃ 'song'	prāk 'previously, before'
balah 'child'	icchati 'he wants'	tat 'it'
bhojanaṃ 'food'	jalaṃ 'water'	tatra 'there'
cūtaṃ 'mango tree'	paśyati 'he sees'	vaṇik 'businessman'

Example Sentences

Consider what happens to the spelling of words whose basic form ends in t, when they are used in a variety of different Sanskrit sentences:

āgacchaj jalaṃ balah 'A child came to the water.'	tad icchati 'He wants it.'
tat pībati 'He drinks it.'	evam agacchat tatra 'So he went there.'
apaśyac cūtaṃ 'He saw a mango tree.'	agacchad bhojanaṃ 'He went to the food.'
phalaṃ etad balah paśyati 'The child sees this fruit.'

(i) Complete the following Sanskrit sentences by providing the appropriate spelling of the word given in brackets:

..... cūtaṃ	'He went to the mango tree.'	(use agacchat)
tatra	balah	'The child came there.'	(use āgacchat)
icchati	jalaṃ	'He wants this water.'	(use etat)
..... tat		'He saw it.'	(use apaśyat)

(ii) Words whose basic form ends in k will always end with a velar consonant. In the words below, the voiced velar g is required in those environments that cause the final t to change to any voiced sound; in other environments, the word ends in k. Given this information, complete the following Sanskrit sentences by providing the appropriate spelling of the word given in brackets:

..... bhojanaṃ	apaśyat	'The businessman saw the food.'	(use vaṇik)
..... icchati	bhojanaṃ	'The businessman wants the food.'	(use vaṇik)
..... phalaṃ	apaśyat	'Previously he saw the fruit.'	(use prāk)
..... gānaṃ	icchati	'The businessman wants a song.'	(use vaṇik)
..... cūtaṃ	apaśyat	'Previously he saw a mango tree.'	(use prāk)

Section B [50 marks]

3. The questions in this section are all based on an invented language, called Makatar. Read each group of examples carefully, paying particular attention to different forms of words, and working out what information they convey (just as in English there are differences between e.g. cat and cats, or beckon and beckons and beckoned). Word order in Makatar is different from that of English and is not really fixed; it is not a reliable guide to the meanings of sentences. Note also that Makatar has nothing corresponding to the English the and a(n), so that bandezdem can mean a bandit or the bandit. You are also advised to work through the questions in this section in the order in which they are given, as the later ones presuppose some information or vocabulary supplied in earlier examples.

mendem ker bold	‘A beggar sings a ballad.’
bandezdem sep mend	‘A bandit leaves the beggar.’
josh bozdom mendvumend	‘The boss protects the beggars.’
torok mendvumendem bozd	‘The beggars pay the boss.’

bandezdvubandezdem joshok dokt	‘The bandits protect the daughter.’
bold kerek bandezdem vu astvoldom	‘The bandit and a policeman sing a ballad.’
bandezd astvoldom ojosh	‘The policeman will protect the bandit.’

Give the meaning of:

doktom tor mend [4]

esepek bozdvubozdom astvold [5]

Translate into Makatar:

The policemen will protect the daughters.
..... [6]

(b)

Section C [25 marks]

4.

(i) Give a rule explaining the choice between he, him, himself; she, her, herself; and they, them, themselves in the following sentences.

(ii) Why are the sentences marked with an asterisk considered to be ungrammatical in most varieties of English?

It hurt me.

I hurt it.

She hurt him.

They hurt them.

He hurt you.

Me hurt him.*

You hurt him.

She hurt they.*

I hurt myself.

Her hurt them.*

John hurt himself.

Jane hurt himself.*

Myself hurt me.*

Himself hurt you.*

Jane hurt yourself.*

The boys hurt themselves.

5. English makes a distinction between several different types of question.

- In YES/NO-Questions the appropriate answer is “yes” or “no”: e.g. Is Peter coming tonight?
- In LEADING-Questions the appropriate answer is still “yes” or “no”, but these questions also convey what the speaker thinks the answer to the question ought to be:
 e.g. You don't like fish, do you? (speaker assumes the answer should be “no”)
You like fish, don't you? (speaker assumes the answer should be “yes”)
- CONSTITUENT-Questions seek particular pieces of information (a “yes” or “no” answer would be inappropriate):
 e.g. Who is coming tonight?
When is Peter coming?
- ECHO-Questions may express incredulity or surprise and are often accompanied by a characteristic emphasis on one particular part of the sentence (indicated here using capital letters):
 e.g. You spent HOW MUCH?
You went WHERE?

(i) Identify each of the following sentences as one of the above types:

- Will you stay here today?*
- How can I help you?*
- How many cars did you buy?*
- You bought how many?*
- You are coming aren't you?*
- What would you like to do?*
- Will you stay where I leave you?*
- You can't eat nuts, can you?*
- You want what?*
- Who do you want to come?*

We can usually see that YES/NO-Questions are related to corresponding non-question sentences in a systematic way:

- e.g. Is Peter coming? is related to the statement Peter is coming.
- Can I go to the ball?* is related to the statement I can go to the ball.
- Will you marry me?* is related to the sentence You will marry me.
- Does John like fish?* is related to the sentence John likes fish.
- Does Mary drive a car?* is related to the sentence Mary drives a car.

(ii) Try to devise a rule which turns a statement into a YES/NO-Question.
