

Classics and English Information Sheet for entry in 2017

Classics and English appeals to those interested in the interactions of historically diverse literary cultures. English may be taken with Latin or Greek or both. For candidates with an A-level or equivalent in either Latin or Greek or both, this is a three-year course (Course I). For those who have not had the opportunity to study either language at school or college there is a preliminary year in which they learn Latin or Greek alongside some study of classical literature; for them the course lasts four years (Course II).

Oxford has a long and distinguished tradition of research and teaching in both Classics and English, and possesses remarkable library provision in both subjects.

The first year of the course (which follows the preliminary year of language learning for those taking Course II) is divided between the classical and English elements. The highlight of the Classics and English course is the link papers, which are studied over the second and third years. They provide an opportunity to compare texts from both sides of the course and to study classical influence. Further papers are also chosen from each of the 'parent' subjects.

A typical weekly timetable

Students usually have two tutorials a week, plus language classes. They are often (but not always) working on two papers simultaneously. Most students attend three to four lectures a week and produce around twelve pieces of written work during a term.

This table is a summary of Course I. In Course II students have a preliminary year studying Latin or Greek, and then follow the structure outlined below.

1st year
Courses Five papers are taken: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Introduction to English Language and Literature</li> <li>• Literature in English 1550–1660</li> <li>• Unseen translation for Classics</li> <li>• Greek and/or Latin literature (two papers)</li> </ul> Note: Course II students spend an additional preliminary year learning Latin or Greek, alongside some study of classical literature.	Assessment Four written papers form the First University Examination, together with a submitted portfolio of two essays for Introduction to English Language and Literature. All exams must be passed, but marks do not count towards the final degree.
2nd and 3rd years
Courses Seven papers are taken: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Two link papers, one compulsory (Epic), and a choice from Comedy, Tragedy, Reception</li> <li>• Two papers from the English single honours course, including one period paper not taken in the first year</li> <li>• One core paper in Latin or in Greek literature</li> <li>• One Classics option</li> <li>• Dissertation of 8,000 words, either interdisciplinary or focused on English or Classics</li> </ul> A full list of current options is available on the Classics course website.	Assessment Up to three papers examined as coursework (extended essays and dissertation). The remaining papers will then be examined by final written examinations

The University will seek to deliver each course in accordance with the descriptions set out above. However, there may be situations in which it is desirable or necessary for the University to make changes in course provision, either before or after registration. For further information, please see the University's Terms and Conditions.
