Course Information Sheet for entry in 2016-17

MSt in General Linguistics and Comparative Philology

About the course

The MSt in General Linguistics and Comparative Philology is a taught course offering a range of options for graduates seeking a higher academic qualification in language studies and wishing to specialise in General Linguistics (including Phonetics but not Applied Linguistics), in Historical and Comparative linguistics, or in the linguistics of a specific language.

In addition to a compulsory paper in linguistic theory, you will specialise in general linguistics (B), or in the linguistics of one or two selected languages (D).

Occasionally, you may specialise in Indo-European historical and comparative philology and linguistics (C). However, option C is not usually feasibly in the MSt unless you have an exceptional level of prior background in this area. There is scope for some work in historical and comparative linguistics in the MSt via the module in Historical and Comparative Linguistics under option B, and via options in the history and structure of specific languages. However, if you would like to specialise fully in Indo-European comparative philology via option C, you are strongly encouraged to apply for the MPhil in General Linguistics and Comparative Philology instead.

Option B

Two exam papers are chosen from the following range:

Phonetics and Phonology

Syntax

Semantics

Historical and Comparative Linguistics

Psycholinguistics and Neurolinguistics

History and Structure of a Language

Experimental Phonetics

Sociolinguistics

One option may be taken from those offered as C options for the MSt in English Language. You may also ask for one option in another subject in general linguistics; approval will be subject to the availability of proper instruction and provision for examination.

Option C

Please note that option C is not usually available, unless exceptional circumstances apply.

You select two ancient Indo-European languages or language groups (eg Greek, Italic, Celtic, Anatolian, Indo-Iranian, Slavic etc).

You will choose two of the following three subjects, which are assessed via examination papers: (i) the comparative grammar of the two languages or language groups; (ii) the historical grammar of the two languages or language groups; and (iii) set texts for linguistic commentary in the two languages or language groups.

Option D

You may select either ancient (eg Latin, Sanskrit, Akkadian) or modern languages (eg French, Italian, German, Japanese).

You will choose two of the following three subjects, which are assessed via examination papers: (i) the history of the language or languages chosen; (ii) the structure of the language or languages chosen; and (iii) set texts for linguistic commentary in the language or languages chosen.

Subject (iii) may be replaced with any of the modules listed under Option B, except for the history and structure of a language.

One module from option B or D (or C, where this is taken) may be replaced by a thesis of 10,000 words.

Changes to courses

The University will seek to deliver each course in accordance with the descriptions set out above. However, there may be situations in which it is desirable or necessary for the University to make changes in course provision, either before or after registration. For further information, please see the University's Terms and Conditions.

(including islands)
Overseas	£17,555	£2,933	£20,488

The fees shown above are the annual tuition and college fees for this course for entry in the 2016-17 academic year; for courses lasting longer than one year, please be aware that fees will usually increase annually. For details, please see our guidance on likely increases to fees and charges.

Tuition and college fees are payable each year for the duration of your fee liability (your fee liability is the length of time for which you are required to pay tuition and college fees).

Additional cost information

Depending on your choice of options, and especially the choice of thesis project, some fieldwork or experimental work may be required. The faculty has a limited budget to help with these costs.

Living costs

In addition to your fees, you will need to ensure that you have adequate funds to support your living costs for the duration of your course.

The likely living costs for 2016-17 are published below. These costs are based on a single, full-time graduate student, with no dependants, living in Oxford. We provide the cost per month so you can multiply up by the number of months you expect to live in Oxford.

	Likely living costs for 1 month		Likely living costs for 9 months		Likely living costs for 12 months
	Lower	Upper range	Lower	Upper range	Lower	Upper range
Food	£265	£298	£2,384	£2,673	£3,177	£3,565
