PREFACE

CONSTITUTION AND STATUTE-MAKING POWERS OF THE UNIVERSITY

1. Legal status of the University

The University of Oxford is a lay corporation first established at common law by custom or prescription and later formally incorporated by statute. It has no founder and no charter. The early history of the University¹ shows that it evolved from a group of Masters and students residing in Oxford in the latter part of the twelfth century. The academic society which they collectively brought into life paralleled similar associations at other centres of learning in Europe, notably Bologna and Paris. The term originally used throughout Europe to describe such a society was studium generale. The purpose of the studia generalia was to provide instruction in the seven liberal arts - grammar, logic, and rhetoric (the trivium) and arithmetic, geometry, astronomy, and music (the quadrivium). Graduates in arts could embark upon a higher course of study leading to degrees in law, medicine, or theology.

In 1214 the body of Masters and Scholars at Oxford was placed under the jurisdiction of a Chancellor, to be appointed by the Bishop of Lincoln. The office was created under the terms of an award of the papal legate, Nicholas Cardinal Bishop of Tusculum, made in settlement of a dispute with the townspeople over the hanging of two students in 1209 for complicity in murder. This incident had resulted in the closure of the schools and the summary departure of the scholars in protest, some of whom went on to establish a studium in Cambridge. Later in the century it became the practice for the Bishop of Lincoln to confirm in office the Chancellor elected by the Oxford Masters themselves.

After 1214 the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of Oxford quickly gained recognition as a corporate body distinct from the individuals who were its members. The word universitas, which at the time meant any body of persons having a distinct purpose and legal status, was first applied to the Masters at Oxford in 1216² and within the next two decades was applied to the body of Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars collectively in grants of royal and papal legal privileges. The enactment of statutes began not later than 1230; a Common Chest was established by 1240; and the use of the Common Seal was firmly established by 1276.³ Proctors and Bedels were established in office at the beginning of the thirteenth century,⁴ although the University had to wait until 1448 for the office of Registrar,⁵ and the post of Vice-Chancellor was not fully established until 1549.⁶ The earliest recorded depiction of the coat of arms is 1412-17. Its use had become official by 1429.⁷ The first buildings owned by the University were Congregation House and the Divinity School, with Duke Humfrey's Library.

The establishment of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge may be contrasted with the foundation of their colleges. All the colleges are founded by charter. With the exception of the more modern foundations they are eleemosynary corporations, that is to say they were established and endowed for the perpetual distribution of the bounty of the founder and were frequently charged with the duty of saying masses or prayers for the founder and his or her kin.⁸

2. Act of incorporation

After more than three centuries, Oxford and Cambridge Universities were formally incorporated in 1571 by statute. The Act for the Incorporation of Both Universities is a short Act containing a preamble and seven sections. The principal intention of the Act, stated in the preamble, is 'that the ancient Privileges Liberties and Franchises of either of the said Universities herebefore granted ratified and confirmed by the Queen's Highness and her most noble Progenitors may be had in greater Estimation and be of greater Force and Strength ...'

Section 1 enacts that the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of Oxford shall be incorporated and have perpetual succession in fact, deed, and name 'by the Name of the Chancellor Masters and Scholars of the University of Oxford'. The University is to be known by that name, is to have a Common Seal, and may sue and be sued accordingly. Corresponding provision is made for the University of Cambridge. Although the Act did not create the Universities it stands as the highest legal confirmation of their corporate status.

3. Early statutes

At common law a corporation has the power to enact rules for the regulation of its internal affairs including procedures for the creation of new rules and the repeal or amendment of existing ones. These rules are of course subject to and may be overridden by the general law of the land.

In its first 400 years Oxford University exercised its rule-making power in full measure.⁹ The early statutes recognised the Congregation of the Regent Masters, that is those teaching and resident in Oxford, as the principal governing body of the University for most purposes. They provided for the summoning of Congregation, the procedure to be followed at meetings, and the taking of votes. A great Congregation, or Convocation, of Non-regent and Regent Masters was established as the University's supreme governing body, meeting from time to time. Convocation, not Congregation, exercised the power to make, amend, and annul statutes. The officers of the University were provided for and the manner of their election. Statutes were made governing admission to degrees, the giving of lectures, student discipline, academic dress, the administration of the Chancellor's Court, and many other matters.

4. The Laudian Code

During the sixteenth century it was recognised that the statutes had fallen into an unco-ordinated if not chaotic state. No single authoritative version existed, various copies being in the hands of different university officers. Attempts were made during that century and in the reign of James I to revise them and give them a more coherent shape. The accession of Charles I in March 1625 and the election of Archbishop Laud as Chancellor of the University in April 1630 finally produced a comprehensive and accessible code of statutes which was to govern the University for the next 200 years.¹⁰

King Charles and the Archbishop were as much concerned with the need to control religious divisions inside the University, and student indiscipline, as they were with the unsatisfactory state of the statutes themselves. The Laudian Code was preceded by the creation in 1631 of the Hebdomadal Board, the weekly meeting of the Vice-Chancellor and college heads to discuss university business, designed by Laud to dilute the influence of Congregation and Convocation, and by the grant by Charles I of the Great Charter of 3 March 1636. This charter enlarged the University's legal privileges, and the jurisdiction of the Chancellor's Court in both civil and criminal matters at the expense of the courts of common law, and reinforced the rights and privileges of the University Press.

The text of the Code, after a gestation period of five years, was finally settled by Laud himself and presented to the King who ratified it by Royal Letters of Confirmation on 3 June 1636.¹¹ The political purpose of this document is clear, but its legal effect was more debatable. The operative part states that the King ‘accepts approves ratifies and confirms’ the Code. It directs the heads of colleges to give their written assent to the Code on the day of its presentation to and promulgation by Convocation and requires all the Masters and Scholars of the University to swear their allegiance to it within six months of that event. It was formally adopted on 22 June.¹²

The Code incorporated three statutes previously sent by the King to Convocation under the royal signet - the so-called Statuta Carolina, or Royal Statutes - which concerned among other things the appointment of Proctors and the establishment of the Hebdomadal Board. On the other hand it did not codify all the earlier statutes, some of which were unaffected by it. The provisions of the Code which dealt with Convocation’s law-making powers, taken with the Royal Letters of Confirmation, gave rise to the question whether the University had retained any power, and if so what, to alter or annul its existing statutes - the Code generally, the three Royal Statutes in particular, or any of the others - or to make new statutes. Counsels’ opinion delivered in 1759¹³ brushes aside the legal effect of the Letters of Confirmation and is a robust statement of the University’s continuing legal independence.

‘... we think that the King has no power vested in him by his prerogative, or otherwise, to give laws or Statutes to the University after its original Act of Incorporation, without their acceptance, assent, or confirmation. And we also think, that it was not in the power of the University to delegate their right of making perfect By-Laws or Statutes to any subject, or even to the King: and that no Statutes, made by such delegation, would be valid without the assent or confirmation of the Convocation. It is that which we think gives vitam et modum to every Statute, and as it was not in the power of the University itself to enact any Statutes which should remain unalterable or unrepealable, so we think it could not delegate a power to any subject or to the Crown, to enact or make any laws that should not be repealable without the consent of such subject or his heirs, or such King or his successors; and though powers have in some instances been actually delegated by the University to the Crown, to give them Statutes for their government, and the Crown has accordingly so done, and such Statutes have been confirmed by Royal authority, yet even such Statutes so made and so confirmed cannot (we think), abrogate the legislative power necessarily inherent in, and incident to the University ...’

Blackstone gave advice to the same effect.¹⁴

Not surprisingly Convocation was prepared to act on that advice, but the issue was revived when, in response to a controversial election to the Regius Professorship of Divinity in 1836, Convocation purported to annul those parts of the Laudian Code which gave the professor jurisdiction over preachers. The University obtained legal opinions to the effect that the University’s power to override the Code was limited by the provisions of the Code itself, on the ingenious ground among others that the Letters of Confirmation should be construed as a new charter. This advice was not followed, but the issue was again debated with the University Commissioners of 1850, who recommended that the University should petition the Crown for the removal of any fetter on the University’s powers which the Code and the Letters of Confirmation might have imposed. Full power of dealing with the Code was granted by Royal Licence on 10 July 1854¹⁵ with the exception of the Royal Statute which constituted the Hebdomadal Board. Licence was also given to repeal and alter any other statutes without further licence or authority. The document is silent on the power to make new statutes outside the scope of the Code, which must have been implicitly accepted.

For all practical purposes therefore, before the work of the University Commissioners in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, the powers of the University now corresponded with the description given by Counsel in 1759, with the possible exception of the statute relating to the Hebdomadal Board.

5. University Commissioners 1850-81

From the nineteenth century onwards the University's power to make its own statutes has been reduced. A Royal Commission appointed in 1850 proposed a long list of reforms for the University including major changes to its constitution and the internal balance of power. It perceived that the influence of the University, represented by the professors and the Regent Masters in Congregation, had virtually evaporated, and that the real power base at the centre consisted of Laud's Hebdomadal Board, comprising all the heads of house, and Convocation. In consequence the colleges, now far more generously endowed than the University, had become in large measure autonomous, secretive, and unsupervised institutions enjoying a degree of privilege and control over their assets which was inimical to academic and social progress.

Lord Curzon¹⁶ described the situation at Oxford in 1852 in these terms: 'The first Commission found the Fellows a powerful body of nearly 550 strong, appointed by favour from a narrowly restricted class, drawing large but irregular stipends, all unmarried and in Holy Orders, holding office for life, and mostly living away from Oxford.'

The Oxford University Act 1854 was passed to give effect to the Commission's main recommendations. A new statutory Commission was appointed to exercise its powers until 1 January 1857 (or 1858 if necessary).¹⁷ Subsequent provisions of the Act then imposed new constitutional arrangements directly upon the University by the force of the Act itself. The Hebdomadal Board was abolished and replaced by a new elected Hebdomadal Council.¹⁸ Detailed provisions were made for the membership of the new Council and the mode of election.¹⁹ The Council was empowered to make rules for the regulation of its own proceedings.²⁰ Subject to the supervision of the Council, the Vice-Chancellor was required to draw up a new register of members of Congregation, the composition of which was specified in detail by the Act.²¹ Statutes promulgated by the Hebdomadal Council were to be laid before Congregation for debate;²² but Convocation remained the supreme law-making body.²³

In order to widen access to the University to individuals who could not for a variety of reasons gain admission to a college or existing hall, power was given to the Vice-Chancellor to license members of Convocation to open their residences as private halls;²⁴ and the University was given the right to make statutes for private halls.²⁵

The colleges were empowered to alter and amend their statutes subject to the Commissioners' approval.²⁶ The intention was that the colleges should modernise themselves, but if they failed to do so the Commissioners could make statutes for them.²⁷ The University had the same powers as the colleges in relation to halls and private halls, with the same default powers reserved to the Commissioners.²⁸ Statutes made under these provisions were to be published in the London Gazette and laid before Parliament. Objections could be made and would be considered by the Privy Council.²⁹

The Act also gave the University power to alter trusts or directions affecting gifts or endowments of more than fifty years' standing, with the consent of the Commissioners and the Privy Council.³⁰

The University and the colleges were entitled to repeal or alter any statute made under the Act in the same manner as they could amend any other statute;³¹ but statutes made by the Commissioners could not be repealed or altered except with the approval of the Privy Council.³² The University was also authorised to alter the sections of the Act itself which provided for the constitution, powers, and proceedings of the Hebdomadal Council and Congregation, subject again to the Privy Council's consent.³³

Commissioners for Cambridge worked on parallel lines. Their report produced the Cambridge University Act 1856.

Gladstone's Universities Tests Act 1871 abolished any requirement imposed at Oxford, Cambridge, or Durham that, before taking a degree (other than in divinity) or exercising any right or privilege or taking up any lay office or appointment, a person should make a declaration of religious faith or affiliation. The process of reform was then continued by the appointment of new Royal Commissioners in 1872, with specific terms of reference and powers to investigate and report upon the financial resources of Oxford and Cambridge and their colleges. The report of the 1872 Commissioners, published in 1874, resulted in the passing of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act 1877.

Unlike the 1854 Act, the 1877 Act did not directly impose new laws on the Universities or their colleges. The Act was an enabling and procedural Act, empowering Commissioners appointed under the Act to make statutes for the Universities and colleges as they thought fit in accordance with a statutory procedure. As before, this power included the right to alter trusts of more than fifty years' standing.³⁴ Section 16 of the Act set out an extensive list of objects for which university statutes could be made, including the setting up of a scheme requiring colleges to make contributions to a common fund 'for University purposes'. Statutes made by the Commissioners were again required to be submitted to the Privy Council for approval, and after that to be laid before Parliament.³⁵ The 1854 Act was not repealed, but section 51 of the 1877 Act provided that statutes duly made by the Commissioners should take effect 'notwithstanding any instrument of foundation or any Act of Parliament ...' or other instrument or document. The substantive sections of the 1854 Act would accordingly remain in force until overridden by new Commissioners' statutes. The Universities and the colleges retained the power to alter statutes made by the Commissioners, but no alteration would be effective unless approved by the Privy Council.³⁶

Neither of these two Acts abolished the University's inherent power to make statutes for itself, or to amend or annul those statutes. To the extent that existing statutes were inconsistent with Commissioners' statutes (or the provisions of the 1854 Act) they were ineffective; and Privy Council approval was required whenever the University wished to pass new legislation which would have some effect on the laws imposed by Parliament or the Commissioners. Otherwise the University's right to govern its own internal affairs was unimpaired. One important example of purely internal legislation was the creation of the faculties and the General Board of the Faculties in 1910.

6. Asquith's Commission and the Act of 1923

Royal Commissioners were again appointed in 1919 and reported in 1922. The Oxford Committee was chaired by Asquith. Their deliberations resulted in the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge Act 1923, which remains in force. This Act follows the model of the 1877 Act, and incorporates many of its provisions, as set out in the Schedule. Commissioners were again appointed to make statutes and regulations for each University and its colleges and halls,³⁷ and they were directed in particular to 'have regard to the need of facilitating the admission of poorer students to the Universities and colleges.'³⁸ The power to make statutes altering trusts was again confirmed, the time bar being increased from fifty to sixty years.³⁹

Section 7 of the 1923 Act is concerned with the power of the Universities and colleges to alter or make statutes after the cesser of the Commissioners. Under section 7 (1) statutes made by the Commissioners or any other authority which affects the University may be altered by the University by a further statute made under the Act. If the statute affects a college, the college's consent must be obtained. The procedures applicable to the making of a statute by the Commissioners must be followed: section 7 (3). These include the submission of the proposed statute to the Privy Council for approval.

Until 1969, when the statutes were revised in the light of the recommendations of the Franks Commission, the form and sequence of the statutes continued to follow as faithfully as it could the Laudian Code. The older statutes, which were untouched by the 1854 Act or the Commissioners, continued to be published in Latin. The Commissioners' statutes, as amended from time to time, now commonly called 'Queen-in-Council' statutes, and the University's own modern statutes, were interposed where appropriate and published in English.

7. Decrees and regulations

The practice of enacting subordinate legislation, below the level of statutes, for more detailed administrative matters is also of high antiquity. When Convocation, meeting less frequently, possessed the primary statute-making power, it was understandable that it should delegate to Congregation a power to make subordinate rules and regulations for the more detailed implementation of law and policy. There is evidence of an ordinance passed by Congregation alone as early as 1278.⁴⁰ The 1854 Act recognised this practice by giving to the Hebdomadal Council and to Congregation the power to make rules for the regulation of their own proceedings.⁴¹

In more modern times the Hebdomadal Council and (after 1 October 2000) the Council have enjoyed a general power to make, amend, and repeal subordinate legislation not inconsistent with the statutes, and to authorise any other body or person to do so. Decrees and regulations, which include the voluminous decrees and regulations relating to examinations, came to exceed by a very considerable amount the volume of the University's statutes.

8. Franks Commission

In 1964 the University appointed a Commission under the chairmanship of Sir Oliver (later Lord) Franks to carry out a comprehensive review of the University in the light of the Government's Robbins Report and to make recommendations for reform. Its report was published in 1966 and included a number of significant recommendations for reform of the statutes.

By the time of Franks the jurisdiction of Convocation over statutes had been reduced but not entirely abolished. The 1923 Act Commissioners had left Convocation with the following functions: electing the Chancellor; electing persons for presentation to benefices in the gift of the University; conferring degrees by diploma and honorary degrees; and approving letters from the University to the sovereign and certain other bodies. With regard to statutes, under the then Title X, Section I, clause 6 statutes accepted by Congregation by votes of less than two-thirds of the members present and voting were required to be submitted to Convocation; and there was a corresponding provision concerning the passing of decrees under Title X, Section I, clause 7. Convocation was also obliged to perform such further duties as might be assigned to it by the University Statutes.

The Franks Commission recommended that Congregation alone should have the power to make statutes or to amend or repeal them. It also drew up a new set of statutes, for the first time entirely in English, in a new sequence which finally dispensed with the order devised by Archbishop Laud. Its report recognised⁴² the established distinction between 'Queen-in-Council' statutes and others, but suggested that, since the majority of its proposed new statutes covered matters which had been dealt with in Commissioners' statutes in the past, the new code in its entirety should be sent to the Privy Council for approval.

The University adopted virtually the whole of the code recommended by Franks. Only the provisions relating to student discipline remained unreformed. The University did not however adopt the suggestion that all the statutes should be brought within the jurisdiction of the Privy Council. Correspondence passed between the then Secretary for Administration, on behalf of the University, and Sir Godfrey Agnew, Clerk to the Privy Council, between November 1966 and January 1967 as a result of which it was possible to identify by agreement the statutes in the new code which should be treated as 'Queen-in-Council' statutes and those which should not. The correspondence thus acknowledged the University's continuing right to pass, amend, and repeal some of its statutes without the need to obtain Privy Council approval. In the process of categorisation regard was had not only to the history of statute-making by Commissioners but also the necessity to ensure that the Privy Council continued to oversee important matters and the desirability so far as possible to relieve the Privy Council of the task of scrutinising matters of less importance.

The new statutes came into force in 1969. After more than 700 years Convocation was finally deprived of all jurisdiction over statutes, its role being limited to the historic role of electing the Chancellor, and performing such other duties as Congregation might decide. The only other duty assigned to Convocation since that date is the election of the Professor of Poetry.

9. Education Reform Act 1988

Commissioners were appointed under the Education Reform Act 1988 to make statutes for all the Universities in England and Wales concerning the tenure of office and dismissal of academic staff, the procedures to be followed in cases of ill-health, and the handling of staff grievances. The statute made for Oxford by the 1988 Act Commissioners has been re-enacted within Statute XII in these statutes. It cannot be altered without the consent of the Privy Council under the terms of the 1988 Act. It is therefore properly described as a 'Queen-in-Council' statute, although it does not derive that status from the 1923 Act. Unlike other Commissioners' statutes it also requires the University to make by-laws on matters of detailed implementation.

10. North Commission

In 1997-8 a Commission under the chairmanship of the then Vice-Chancellor, Sir Peter North, which had been appointed by the University to carry out a review of the organisation, management, and financing of the University, and to recommend reform where appropriate, submitted its report. A Joint Working Party on Governance, established by the University and the colleges under the chairmanship of Sir Peter's successor, Dr (later Sir) Colin Lucas, to consider the North Report, then promoted important changes to the University's internal structures which came into force on 1 October 2000. The main changes were: the merger of the University's two principal governing committees - the Hebdomadal Council and the General Board of the Faculties - into a single exclusive Council, subject to the overriding sovereignty of Congregation; the inclusion in the new Council of members who were not members of Congregation; the delegation of much of the central business of the University to four main committees, each chaired by the Vice-Chancellor or a Pro-Vice-Chancellor; the arrangement of the faculties, sub-faculties, and departments into five new academic divisions with overall responsibility for their activities and funding; the appointment of a permanent head of each division, who would automatically be a member of Council; and statutory representation of the colleges on each of these bodies.

The North Commission also noted that the statutes and subordinate legislation of the University again needed substantial revision. The statutes themselves had become burdened with unnecessary detail, and the whole needed to be set out in a more accessible and comprehensible form.

The current Statutes and Regulations were prepared by a working party chaired by the then Principal of St Hugh's College, Mr Derek Wood, QC, appointed to implement the Commission's recommendations. The opportunity was taken to include within the statutes some basic constitutional provisions normally found in a charter (for example Statute I, sections 1-4 and Statute II) and to bring the University's disciplinary and dispute-resolution procedures in line with current legal practice (Statutes XI and XVII).

For the first time in its history the University repealed the whole of its existing legislation and replaced it with an entirely new code. The Statutes were approved by Congregation on 11 December 2001. The 'Queen-in-Council' Statutes were then approved by Her Majesty in Council on 17 April 2002. The subordinate legislation (previously split between decrees and regulations) was substantially and progressively revised and recast as Regulations in a new form intended to make them easier to identify and understand and to allow further revision and replacement to be carried out more efficiently.

The new code came into force on 1 October 2002.

STATUTE XI

UNIVERSITY DISCIPLINE

PART C: BREACHES BY STUDENT MEMBERS

23. (1) If the Proctors have reasonable grounds for believing that a student member has committed a breach of section 2 or 3 of this statute they may refer the matter to the Student Disciplinary Panel.
- (2) If a Proctor or any member of the university staff who is authorised by the Proctors for the purposes of this sub-section has reasonable grounds for believing that a student member has committed a breach of the Regulations of the Rules Committee relating to behaviour after examinations he or she may impose a fine on that student member (called 'an immediate fine') on becoming aware of the breach in question.
- (3) The procedure to be followed in the imposition of immediate fines, the amount of the fine, and a student member's right of appeal from an immediate fine shall be prescribed in regulations.
24. (1) In any case proceeding before the Student Disciplinary Panel or the Student Appeal Panel, the case for the Proctors may be presented by either of the Proctors or, at their discretion, by any Pro-Proctor or any other member of Congregation.
- (2) In appropriate circumstances, following suitable consultations, the case may be presented by a solicitor or barrister who is not a member of Congregation.
- (3) In any such proceedings it shall be the duty of the Proctors or their representative to state to the Panel what penalty in the Proctors' opinion would be appropriate if the person charged were found guilty, and to give the Proctors' reasons for that opinion.
25. (1) The Proctors may during the course of an investigation under section 21 of this statute into an alleged breach other than one involving harassment of or serious injury to a person, serious damage to property, or a significant element of dishonesty invite the student member in question to consider whether he or she is prepared to submit this matter for determination by the Proctors.
- (2) If the student member agrees to the disposal of a case under this section it shall be dealt with by the Proctors accordingly and not referred to the Student Disciplinary Panel.
- (3) The only penalties which the Proctors may impose upon a student member under this section are:
- (a) a fine alone or with compensation not exceeding the sum as prescribed by regulation from time to time under section 26 of this statute; or
- (b) a written warning as to his or her future conduct, of which the Proctors shall keep a record.
- (4) Further rules relating to the procedures of the Proctors under this section shall be set out in regulations made under section 20 of this statute.

26. Council may from time to time by regulation specify the maximum amounts of the fines and/or compensation referred to in section 25 (3) (a) of this statute.

27. If a student member is aggrieved by a decision of the Proctors he or she may appeal to the Student Disciplinary Panel.

28. If the Proctors consider in the light of additional evidence that their powers under section 25 of this statute are insufficient to meet the gravity of the circumstances, they may refer the case to the Student Disciplinary Panel under the regulations for that body.

29. (1) If the Student Disciplinary Panel, the Student Appeal Panel, or the Proctors in the course of proceedings or an investigation under this statute has or have reasonable grounds for believing that a student member is suffering from a serious problem arising from ill-health the Panel concerned or the Proctors shall refer the student to the University's Occupational Health Service in accordance with the procedures set out in Part B of Statute XIII.

(2) Until a determination of the case under Part B of Statute XIII all further proceedings under this Part of this statute shall be adjourned.

30. (1) If the Proctors have reasonable grounds to believe that a breach of section 2 or 3 of this statute has been committed by a student member who is also a person to whom Statute XII applies, they shall before deciding to proceed under section 23 of this statute refer the matter to the Registrar to enable him or her to decide whether to proceed under that statute.

(2) If the Registrar decides to proceed under Statute XII no further proceedings shall be taken against the student member under section 23 of this statute but the Proctors shall continue to give the Registrar such assistance as he or she may require.

(3) If the Registrar decides not to proceed under Statute XII and the matter also relates to alleged breaches of sections 2 or 3, he or she shall refer the matter to the Proctors if he or she considers it appropriate to do so.

PART D: BREACHES BY OTHER MEMBERS

31. If the Proctors have reasonable grounds for believing that a member of the University who is not a student member has committed a breach of section 2 or 3 or they shall, if they consider it appropriate to proceed, refer the matter to the Registrar.

32. If a matter is referred to the Registrar under section 31 of this statute against a member who is also a person to whom Statute XII applies, the Registrar shall deal with the matter under the provisions of Statute XII.

33. If a matter is referred to the Registrar under section 31 of this statute against a member who is not a person to whom Statute XII applies, the Registrar shall refer the matter to Council, the member's college, or such other body or committee within or outside the University as the Registrar considers appropriate.

PART E: OTHER PROVISIONS

34. (1) A penalty of suspension or rustication imposed by a college upon one of its members shall apply also to university premises and facilities subject to the right of appeal referred to in sub-section (2) below.
- (2) A member of a college penalised under sub-section (1) above may appeal to the Student Disciplinary Panel against the application of that penalty to that member's use of university premises and facilities and, if the Student Disciplinary Panel is satisfied that there are special circumstances, it may permit the member concerned to continue to have access to university premises and facilities with or without conditions as to such access.
35. If a student member of the University is alleged to have committed a breach of section 2 or 3 for which he or she will be or is likely to be prosecuted in a court of law, the Proctors shall not proceed, if at all, unless they are satisfied either that any criminal proceedings in respect of that breach have been completed, whether by conviction or acquittal or discontinuance of the proceedings, or that the member is unlikely to be prosecuted in a court of law in respect of that alleged breach.
36. (1) Where there are reasonable grounds for so doing, the Proctors shall suspend the student member or impose a ban on the student member pending the outcome of criminal proceedings or a hearing before the Student Disciplinary Panel or Student Appeal Panel.
- (2) The right of appeal provided for in section 27 of this statute shall apply to orders made under this section.

38. (1) If a student member has been convicted of a criminal offence of such seriousness that an immediate term of imprisonment might have been imposed (and whether or not such a sentence was in fact imposed on the student member) the Proctors may refer the matter to the Student Disciplinary Panel which may, if it thinks fit and in accordance with regulations made under section 20 of this statute, expel the student member from his or her membership of the University or impose such lesser penalty or other conditions as it thinks fit.
- (2) The right of appeal referred to in section 13 of this statute shall apply to orders made under sub-section (1) above.

40. (1) Where a fine is imposed upon a student member, or an order is made requiring a student member to pay compensation, under the provisions of this statute, the fine or compensation shall be paid within seven days (or two days, in the case of immediate fines imposed under section 23) whether or not an appeal is pending, unless the person or body which imposed the fine or compensation, or the Panel to which any appeal is made, makes an order, in accordance with procedure set out in regulations made under section 20 of this statute, suspending or deferring payment.
- (2) If the fine or compensation is not paid in time the Panel which imposed it (or, in the case of a fine or compensation imposed by the Proctors, the Student Disciplinary Panel) may rusticate the student member for such period as it thinks fit, in accordance with procedure set out in regulations made under section 20 of this statute.
- (3) Any fine or compensation imposed by any Panel or by the Proctors shall be paid through the Clerk to the Proctors.
41. (1) If a person or body having charge of any land or building of the University, or of any facilities or services provided by or on behalf of the University has reasonable grounds to believe that someone who has the use of or access to the land, building, facilities, or services in question is likely or threatens to cause damage to property or inconvenience to other users, that person or body shall immediately make a complaint under the provisions of this section.
- (2) A complaint against a student member shall be made to the Proctors.
- (3) If a complaint made to the Proctors falls within the provisions of section 36, it shall be considered under that section.
- (4) In any other case concerning a complaint against a student member, the Proctors shall consider the complaint expeditiously, in accordance with procedure set out in regulations made under section 20 of this statute, and may ban the student member from the use of or access to the land, building, facilities or services in question if it is just and reasonable to do so and for such period, not exceeding 42 days, as they think fit.
- (5) Where an order is made under sub-section (4) above, the student member shall have the right of appeal to the Student Disciplinary Panel.
- (6) A complaint against any other member of the University shall be made to the Registrar who shall consider the complaint expeditiously, and

 - (b) in other cases the Registrar shall refer the matter to the Vice-Chancellor for determination.
 - (c) the Vice-Chancellor shall consider any matter referred to him or her by the Registrar under section 41 (6) (b) and may appoint another suitably qualified individual or individuals to act in his or her place.

- (9) If the person referred to in sub-section (1) above is the Registrar, the functions assigned to the Registrar under sub-section (6) shall be performed by the Vice-Chancellor.
- (10) Nothing in this section shall prevent the University from proceeding against any person in a court of law.

STATUTE XII

ACADEMIC STAFF AND THE VISITATORIAL BOARD

(This Statute is a 'Queen-in-Council' statute—see section 2 (2) of Statute IV.)

*Approved with effect from 1 October 2002
(Supplement (1) to Gazette No. 4633, 9 October 2002)*

PART A: CONSTRUCTION, APPLICATION, AND INTERPRETATION

1. This statute and any decree or regulation made under this statute shall be construed in every case to give effect to the following guiding principles, that is to say:
 - (1) to ensure that academic staff have freedom within the law to question and test received wisdom, and to put forward new ideas and controversial or unpopular opinions, without placing themselves in jeopardy of losing their jobs or privileges;
 - (2) to enable the University to provide education, promote learning, and engage in research efficiently and economically; and
 - (3) to apply the principles of justice and fairness.
2. No provision in Part B, Part D, Part E, or Part G shall enable any member of the academic staff to be dismissed unless the reason for the dismissal may in the circumstances (including the size and administrative resources of the University) reasonably be treated as a sufficient reason for dismissal.
3.
 - (1) This statute shall apply:
 - (a) to professors, readers, and lecturers;
 - (b) to employees of the University who are subject to the jurisdiction of the Visitatorial Board under the provisions of Part C; and
 - (c) to the Vice-Chancellor to the extent and in the manner set out in Part G.
 - (2) In this statute any reference to 'a member of the academic staff' is a reference to a person to whom this statute applies.
4. In this statute 'dismiss' and 'dismissal' mean dismissal of a member of the academic staff and
 - (1) include remove or, as the case may be, removal from office; and
 - (2) in relation to employment under a contract, shall be construed in accordance with section 55 of the Employment Protection (Consolidation) Act 1978.
5.
 - (1) For the purposes of this statute 'good cause' in relation to the dismissal or removal from office or place of a member of the academic staff, being in any case a reason which is related to conduct or to capability or qualifications for performing work of the kind which the member of the academic staff concerned was appointed or employed to do, means:

- (a) conviction for an offence which may be deemed by the Visitation Board in the exercise of its powers under Part D to be such as to render the person convicted unfit for the performance of the duties of the office or employment as a member of the academic staff; or
- (b) conduct of an immoral, scandalous, or disgraceful nature incompatible with the duties of the office or employment; or
- (c) conduct constituting failure or persistent refusal or neglect or inability to perform the duties or comply with the conditions of office or employment; or
- (d) physical or mental incapacity established under Part E.

(2) In this section:

- (a) ‘capability’, in relation to such a member, means capability assessed by reference to skill, aptitude, health, or any other physical or mental quality; and
- (b) ‘qualifications’, in relation to such a member, means any degree, diploma or other academic, technical, or professional qualification relevant to the office or position held by that member.

6. For the purposes of this statute dismissal shall be taken to be a dismissal by reason of redundancy if it is attributable wholly or mainly to:

- (1) the fact that the University has ceased, or intends to cease, to carry on the activity for the purposes of which the person concerned was appointed or employed by the University, or has ceased, or intends to cease, to carry on that activity in the place in which the person concerned worked; or
- (2) the fact that the requirements of that activity for members of the academic staff to carry out work of a particular kind, or to carry out work of a particular kind in that place, have ceased or diminished or are expected to cease or diminish.

7. (1) In any case of conflict, the provisions of this statute shall prevail over those of any other of the statutes and over those of the regulations, and the provisions of any regulation made under this statute shall prevail over those of any other regulation; provided that Part D and Part G shall not apply in relation to anything done or omitted to be done before the date on which the instrument making this statute was approved under sub-section (9) of section 204 of the Education Reform Act 1988;¹ and provided also that disciplinary proceedings in relation to anything done or omitted to be done before that date may continue or be instituted after that date under the relevant statutes in force immediately before that date.

(2) Nothing in any appointment made, or contract entered into, shall be construed as overriding or excluding any provision made by this statute concerning the dismissal of a member of the academic staff by reason of redundancy or for good cause; provided that this shall not invalidate any waiver made under section 142 of the Employment Protection (Consolidation) Act 1978.

(3) In any case where an officer of the University or any other person is designated to perform any duties or exercise any powers under this statute, and that officer or other person is involved in the matter in question, an alternate may be appointed to act in his or her place under procedures prescribed by regulations made under this statute.

(4) Nothing in any other of the statutes or in any regulation made under them shall authorise or require any officer of the University to sit as a member of any committee, tribunal, or body appointed under this statute or to be present when any such committee, tribunal, or body is meeting to arrive at its decision or for the purpose of discussing any point of procedure.

(5) This statute shall be without prejudice to any power given by the statutes of any college to the governing body of that college to deprive a member of the academic staff who is a fellow of the college of his or her fellowship or of any part of the emoluments which he or she is entitled to receive as fellow for any cause (including redundancy) for which any other fellow of the college would be liable to be so deprived.

(6) In this statute references to lettered Parts and to numbered sections and sub-sections are references to Parts, sections, and sub-sections so lettered or numbered in this statute.

PART B: REDUNDANCY

8. This Part enables Council, as the appropriate body, to dismiss any member of the academic staff by reason of redundancy.

9. (1) Nothing in this Part shall prejudice, alter, or affect any rights, powers, or duties of the University or apply in relation to a person unless:

(a) his or her appointment is made, or his or her contract of employment is entered into, on or after 20 November 1987; or

(b) he or she is promoted on or after that date.

(2) For the purposes of this section in relation to a person, a reference to an appointment made or a contract entered into on or after 20 November 1987 or to promotion on or after that date shall be construed in accordance with sub-sections (3) to (6) of section 204 of the Education Reform Act 1988.

10. (1) Council shall be the appropriate body for the purposes of this Part.

(2) This Part applies only where Congregation has decided that it is desirable that there should be a reduction in the academic staff

(a) of the University as a whole; or

(b) of any division, faculty, school, department, or other similar area of the University by way of redundancy.

11. (1) Where Congregation has reached a decision under section 10 (2), the appropriate body shall appoint a Redundancy Committee (to be constituted in accordance with sub-section (3) of this section) to give effect to that decision by such date as the appropriate body may specify, and for that purpose:
 - (a) to select and recommend the requisite members of the academic staff for dismissal by reason of redundancy; and
 - (b) to report its recommendations to the appropriate body.
- (2) The appropriate body shall either approve any selection recommendation made under sub-section (1), or shall remit it to the Redundancy Committee for further consideration in accordance with its further directions.
- (3) A Redundancy Committee appointed by the appropriate body shall comprise:
 - (a) a chairman; and
 - (b) four members of Congregation nominated by Council, including not less than two members of the academic staff.
12. (1) Where the appropriate body has approved a selection recommendation made under section 11 (1), it may authorise an officer of the University as its delegate to dismiss any member of the academic staff so selected.
- (2) Each member of the academic staff selected shall be given separate notice of the selection approved by the appropriate body.
- (3) Each separate notice shall sufficiently identify the circumstances which have satisfied the appropriate body that the intended dismissal is reasonable and in particular shall include:
 - (a) a summary of the action taken by Congregation and the appropriate body under this Part;
 - (b) an account of the selection processes used by the Redundancy Committee;
 - (c) a reference to the rights of the person notified to appeal against the notice and to the time within which any such appeal is to be lodged under Part H; and
 - (d) a statement as to when the intended dismissal is to take effect.

PART C: VISITATORIAL BOARD

13. The Visitation Board shall consist of a chairman and four members.
14. (1) The High Steward shall appoint the chairman who shall serve for two years and may be reappointed.
- (2) The chairman shall be a person who is not a member of Congregation and is a barrister or solicitor of at least five years' standing or a person who has judicial experience.

(3) If the chairman is for any reason unable to act on any occasion the High Steward or (in his or her absence) the Vice-Chancellor shall appoint a deputy chairman to act in the place of the chairman for that occasion.

(4) Any deputy chairman must possess the same qualifications as those set out in sub-section (2) above.

(5) If a vacancy arises through the chairman dying or resigning or becoming a member of Congregation before the completion of his or her period of office the person next appointed shall hold office for the remainder of the period of office of the person replaced.

15. The four other members of the board shall be members of Congregation selected from a panel of twelve persons elected by Congregation under arrangements which shall be prescribed from time to time by Council by regulation.

16. The board shall consider:

(1) any reference made by the Vice-Chancellor under Part D concerning any person who is employed by the University and who is a member of the Federated Superannuation System for Universities or the Universities' Superannuation Scheme or who would be a member if he or she had not been exempted under the provisions of Statute XIV;

(2) any other matter which falls within its jurisdiction as prescribed by statute from time to time.

17. (1) Sections 22 and 23 of Part D shall apply to the procedure of the board following a reference made by the Vice-Chancellor under that Part.

(2) The procedure in respect of other matters shall be as prescribed in the relevant statute or regulation.

PART D: DISCIPLINE, DISMISSAL, AND REMOVAL FROM OFFICE

18. (1) Minor faults shall be dealt with informally.

(2) Where the matter is more serious but falls short of constituting possible good cause for dismissal, the following procedure shall be used:

Stage 1—Oral Warning

If conduct or performance does not meet acceptable standards the member of the academic staff will normally be given a formal oral warning by the head of department (which for the purposes of this statute means the head of the relevant department or other institution of the University or, in the absence of such an entity, the chairman of the relevant divisional board or similar university body). The member will be advised of the reason for the warning, that it is the first stage of the disciplinary procedure, and of the right of appeal under this section. A brief note of the oral warning will be kept but it will be spent after twelve months, subject to satisfactory conduct and performance.

Stage 2—Written Warning

If the offence is a serious one, or if a further offence occurs, a written warning will be given to the member of the academic staff by the head of department. This will give details of the complaint, the improvement required, and the time scale. It will warn that a complaint may be made to the Registrar seeking the institution of charges to be heard under this Part by the Visitation Board if there is no satisfactory improvement and will advise of the right of appeal under this section. A copy of this written warning will be kept by the head of department, but it will be disregarded for disciplinary purposes after two years subject to satisfactory conduct and performance.

Stage 3—Appeals

A member of the academic staff who wishes to appeal against a disciplinary warning shall inform the Registrar within two weeks. A Pro-Vice-Chancellor shall hear all such appeals and his or her decision shall be final.

19. (1) If there has been no satisfactory improvement following a written warning given under Stage 2 of the procedure in section 18, or in any case where it is alleged that the conduct or performance of a member of the academic staff may constitute good cause for dismissal or removal from office, a complaint, seeking the institution of charges to be heard by the Visitation Board, may be made to the Registrar who shall bring it to the attention of the Vice-Chancellor.
- (2) To enable the Vice-Chancellor to deal fairly with any complaint brought to his or her attention under sub-section (1), such investigations or inquiries (if any) shall be instituted as appear to the Vice-Chancellor to be necessary.
- (3) If it appears to the Vice-Chancellor that a complaint brought to his or her attention under sub-section (1) relates to conduct or performance which does not meet acceptable standards but for which no written warning has been given under section 18 or which relates to a particular alleged infringement of decrees or regulations for which a standard penalty is normally imposed in the University or within the division, faculty, school, department, or other relevant area, or is trivial or invalid, he or she may dismiss it summarily, or decide not to proceed further under this Part.
- (4) If the Vice-Chancellor does not dispose of a complaint under sub-section (3), he or she shall treat the complaint as disclosing a sufficient reason for proceeding further under this Part and, if he or she sees fit, the Vice-Chancellor may suspend the member on full pay pending a final decision, such power of suspension being exercisable either at this stage or at any time prior to the final decision.
- (5) Where the Vice-Chancellor proceeds further under this Part, he or she shall write to the member of the academic staff concerned, inviting comment in writing.
- (6) As soon as may be following receipt of the member's comments (if any) the Vice-Chancellor shall consider the matter in the light of all the material then available and may:
 - (a) dismiss it; or
 - (b) refer it for consideration under section 18; or

(c) deal with it informally, if it appears to the Vice-Chancellor appropriate to do so and if the member of the academic staff agrees in writing that the matter should be dealt with by the Vice-Chancellor in that way; or

(d) direct that a charge or charges be preferred under section 20 for consideration by the Visitatorial Board under this Part.

(7) If no comment is received within twenty-eight days, the Vice-Chancellor may proceed as above as if the member concerned had denied the substance and validity of the alleged case in its entirety.

20. (1) In any case where the Vice-Chancellor has directed that a charge or charges be preferred under section 19 (6) (d), he or she shall refer the case to the Visitatorial Board to hear the charge or charges under this Part and to determine whether the conduct or performance of the member of the academic staff concerned constitutes good cause for dismissal or otherwise constitutes a serious complaint relating to the member's appointment or employment.

(2) Where the Visitatorial Board has been requested to hear the charge or charges under this Part, the Registrar or a solicitor or other suitable person appointed by the Vice-Chancellor shall be instructed to formulate, or arrange for the formulation of, the charge or charges and to present, or arrange for the presentation of, the charge or charges before the board.

(3) It shall be the duty of the person formulating the charge or charges:

(a) to forward the charge or charges to the board and to the member of the academic staff concerned, together with the other documents specified in the charge or charges; and

(b) to make any necessary administrative arrangements for the summoning of witnesses, the production of documents, and generally for the proper presentation before the board of the case against the member concerned.

21. The Visitatorial Board shall be constituted in accordance with Part C of this statute; provided that no member of the board who has been involved in or associated with the making of the complaint or any part of it, or who has been involved in any preliminary hearing or investigation, shall take part in the hearing of the complaint.

22. (1) The procedure to be followed in respect of the preparation, hearing, and determination of charges by the Visitatorial Board under this Part shall be that set out in regulations made under this section.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, such regulations shall ensure:

(a) that the person charged is entitled to be represented by another person, whether such person is legally qualified or not, in connection with and at any hearing of charges by the board;

- (b) that a charge shall not be determined without an oral hearing at which the person charged and any person appointed to represent that person are entitled to be present;
 - (c) that witnesses may be called, both on behalf of the person charged and by the person presenting the charge, and may be questioned concerning any relevant evidence; and
 - (d) that full and sufficient provision is made:
 - (i) for postponements, adjournments, dismissal of the charge or charges for want of prosecution, and remission of the charge or charges to the Vice-Chancellor for further consideration and for the correction of accidental errors; and
 - (ii) for appropriate time limits for each stage (including the hearing) to the intent that any charge shall be heard and determined by the board as expeditiously as is reasonably practicable.
23. (1) The Visitation Board shall send its decision on any charge referred to it (together with a statement of its findings of fact and the reasons for its decision regarding that charge, and its recommendations, if any, as to the appropriate penalty) to the Vice-Chancellor and to each party to the proceedings, namely the person presenting the charge, the person charged, and any person added as a party at the direction of the board.
- (2) The board shall draw attention to the period of time within which any appeal should be made, by ensuring that a copy of Part H accompanies each copy of its decision sent to a party to the proceedings in accordance with sub-section (1).
24. (1) (a) Where any charge is upheld and the Visitation Board finds good cause and recommends dismissal or removal from office, but in no other case, the appropriate officer shall decide whether or not to dismiss the person concerned.
- (b) If the appropriate officer decides to accept the recommendation, he or she may dismiss that person forthwith.
- (2) In any case where a charge is upheld, other than a case where the appropriate officer has decided under sub-section (1) to dismiss the person concerned, the action available to the appropriate officer (not comprising a greater penalty than that recommended by the board) may be:
- (a) to discuss the issues raised with the person concerned; or
 - (b) to advise the person concerned about his or her future conduct; or
 - (c) to warn the person concerned; or
 - (d) to suspend the person concerned with or without pay for such period as the appropriate officer shall think fair and reasonable, not to exceed three months after the board's decision; or

- (e) to take such further or other action under the contract of employment or terms of appointment of the person concerned as appears fair and reasonable in all the circumstances of the case; or
 - (f) any combination of any of the above.
25. (1) The Vice-Chancellor shall be the appropriate officer to exercise the powers conferred by section 24, but he or she may appoint a delegate to exercise those powers, and any reference to the appropriate officer includes a reference to any such delegate.
- (2) Any action taken by the appropriate officer shall be confirmed in writing.

PART E: REMOVAL FOR INCAPACITY ON MEDICAL GROUNDS

26. (1) This Part makes separate provision for the assessment of incapacity on medical grounds as a good cause for dismissal or removal from office.
- (2) In this Part references to medical grounds are references to capability assessed by reference to health or any other physical or mental quality.
- (3) In this Part references to the appropriate officer are references to the Vice-Chancellor or an officer acting as his or her delegate to perform the relevant act.
- (4) References to the member of the academic staff include, in cases where the nature of the alleged disability so requires, a responsible relative or friend or other person with authority to act on behalf of that member, in addition to (or instead of) that member.
27. (1) Where it appears to the appropriate officer that the dismissal or removal from office of a member of the academic staff on medical grounds would be justified, the appropriate officer:
- (a) shall inform the member accordingly;
 - (b) may suspend the member from duty without loss of pay; and
 - (c) shall notify the member in writing that it is proposed to make an application to the member's medical practitioner for a medical report and shall seek the member's consent in writing in accordance with the requirements of the Access to Medical Reports Act 1988.
- (2) If the member elects to retire voluntarily on medical grounds, he or she shall be allowed to do so, and the University shall meet the reasonable costs of any medical opinion required.
- (3) If the member does not elect to retire voluntarily on medical grounds, the appropriate officer shall refer the case in confidence, with any supporting medical and other evidence (including any medical evidence submitted by the member), to a board (hereinafter referred to as the 'Medical Board') comprising:
- (a) one person nominated by Council;

(b) one person nominated by the member concerned or, in default of the latter nomination, by Council; and

(c) a medically qualified chairman jointly agreed by Council and the member or, in default of agreement, nominated by the President of the Royal College of Physicians.

(4) The Medical Board appointed under this clause may require the member concerned to undergo medical examination at the University's expense.

(5) The procedure to be followed in respect of the preparation, hearing, and determination of a case by a Medical Board shall be prescribed by regulations made under this sub-section; and such regulations shall ensure:

(a) that the member concerned is entitled to be represented by another person, whether such person is legally qualified or not, in connection with and at any hearing of the board;

(b) that a case shall not be determined without an oral hearing at which the member concerned, and any person appointed to represent that member, are entitled to be present;

(c) that witnesses may be called and may be questioned concerning any relevant evidence; and

(d) that the case is heard and determined as expeditiously as is reasonably practicable.

28. If the Medical Board appointed under section 27 determines that the member shall be required to retire on medical grounds, the appropriate officer shall forthwith terminate the employment of the member concerned on those medical grounds.

STATUTE XII

ACADEMIC STAFF AND THE VISITATORIAL BOARD

(This Statute is a 'Queen-in-Council' statute—see section 2 (2) of Statute IV.)

PART F: GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES

29. The aim of this Part is to settle or redress individual grievances promptly, fairly, and so far as may be, within the division, faculty, school, department, or other relevant area by methods acceptable to all parties.

30. The grievances to which this Part applies are ones by members of the academic staff concerning their appointments or employment where those grievances relate:

- (1) to matters affecting themselves as individuals; or
- (2) to matters affecting their personal dealings or relationships with other staff of the University, not being matters for which express provision is made elsewhere in this statute.

31. (1) If other remedies within the division, faculty, school, department, or other relevant area have been exhausted, the member of the academic staff may raise the matter with the head of department (as defined in section 18 (2)).

(2) If the member of the academic staff is dissatisfied with the result of an approach under sub-section (1) or if the grievance directly concerns the head of department, the member may apply in writing to the Vice-Chancellor for redress of the grievance.

(3) (a) If it appears to the Vice-Chancellor that the matter has been finally determined under Part D, E, or H, or that the grievance is trivial or invalid, he or she may dismiss it summarily or take no action upon it.

(b) If it so appears to the Vice-Chancellor, he or she shall inform the member accordingly.

(4) If the Vice-Chancellor is satisfied that the subject matter of the grievance could properly be considered with (or form the whole or any part of):

- (a) a complaint under Part D,
- (b) a determination under Part E, or
- (c) an appeal under Part H,

he or she shall defer action upon it under this Part until the relevant complaint, determination, or appeal has been heard or the time for instituting it has passed, and he or she shall notify the member accordingly.

(5) (a) If the Vice-Chancellor does not reject the complaint under sub-section (3), or if he or she does not defer action upon it under sub-section (4), the Vice-Chancellor shall decide whether it would be appropriate, having regard to the interests of justice and fairness, to seek to dispose of it informally.

(b) If the Vice-Chancellor so decides, he or she shall notify the member and proceed accordingly.

32. If the grievance has not been disposed of informally under section 31 (5), the Vice-Chancellor shall refer the matter to the Grievance Committee for consideration.

33. There shall be a Grievance Committee appointed by Council, which shall comprise:

(1) a chairman; and

(2), (3) two members of Congregation, at least one of whom shall be a member of the academic staff.

34. The procedure in connection with the consideration and determination of grievances shall be determined in regulations in such a way as to ensure that the aggrieved person, and any person against whom the grievance lies, shall have the right to be heard at a hearing and to be accompanied by a friend or representative.

35. The committee shall inform Council whether the grievance is or is not well-founded, and if it is well-founded the committee shall make such proposals to Council for the redress of the grievance as it sees fit, and Council shall take such action as it deems fit.

PART G: REMOVAL OF THE VICE-CHANCELLOR FROM OFFICE

36. The Chancellor may be requested to remove the Vice-Chancellor from office for good cause in accordance with the procedure described in this Part:

(1) A complaint seeking the removal from office of the Vice-Chancellor for good cause may be made by not less than eight members of Council to the Chancellor.

(2) If it appears to the Chancellor, on the available material, that the complaint raises a prima facie case and that this could, if proved, constitute good cause for removal from office, he or she shall require Council to appoint a tribunal to hear and determine the matter.

(3) If it appears to the Chancellor that a complaint made under sub-section (1) does not raise a prima facie case or is trivial or invalid, he or she may recommend to Council that no further action be taken upon it.

(4) When Council has appointed a tribunal under sub-section (2), the Chancellor shall instruct the Registrar to appoint a solicitor or other suitable person to formulate a charge or charges and to present, or arrange for the presentation of, the charges before the tribunal; and it shall be the duty of the person formulating the charge or charges:

(a) to forward the charge or charges to the tribunal and to the Vice-Chancellor, together with the other documents specified in the charge or charges; and

(b) to make any necessary administrative arrangements for the summoning of witnesses, the production of documents, and generally for the proper presentation before the tribunal of the case against the Vice-Chancellor.

(5) A tribunal appointed by Council shall comprise:

(a) a person not employed by the University holding, or having held, judicial office or being a barrister or solicitor of at least ten years' standing, who shall act as chairman; and

(b), (c) two members of Congregation who shall be selected by Council, and at least one of whom shall be a member of the academic staff.

(6) A charge referred to the tribunal shall be dealt with in accordance with the procedure prescribed in section 22, provided:

(a) that the Chancellor shall perform any duty, and exercise any power, there assigned to the Vice-Chancellor; and

(b) that the only recommendation that the tribunal may make is whether or not the Vice-Chancellor should be removed from office.

(7) The tribunal shall send its reasoned decision on any charge referred to it, together with a statement of its findings of fact regarding the charge and its recommendation on the question of removal from office, to the Chancellor and to the Vice-Chancellor, drawing attention to the period of time within which any appeal under Part H should be made.

(8) (a) Where a charge or charges have been upheld by the tribunal and not dismissed on appeal, the Chancellor shall decide whether or not to remove the Vice-Chancellor from office.

(b) If the Chancellor decides to accept the recommendation for removal, he or she may remove the Vice-Chancellor from office forthwith.

37. Where a complaint is to be referred to a tribunal under section 36, the Chancellor may suspend the Vice-Chancellor from his or her duties and may exclude the Vice-Chancellor from the precincts of the University or any part of those precincts without loss of salary.

38. For the purpose of the removal of the Vice-Chancellor for incapacity on medical grounds, Part E shall have effect subject to the following modifications:

(1) for references to a member of the academic staff there shall be substituted references to the Vice-Chancellor;

(2) for any reference to the office of Vice-Chancellor there shall be substituted a reference to the office of Chancellor; and

(3) for section 28 there shall be substituted:

'28. (1) If the Medical Board determines that the Vice-Chancellor should be required to retire on medical grounds, it shall ask the Chancellor, as the appropriate officer, to decide whether or not to terminate the appointment of the Vice-Chancellor on those grounds.

(2) If the Chancellor accepts the board's determination, he or she may remove the Vice-Chancellor from office forthwith.'

PART H: APPEALS

39. This Part establishes procedures for hearing and determining appeals by members of the academic staff who are dismissed or under notice of dismissal or who are otherwise disciplined.

40. (1) This Part applies:

(a) to any appeal against a decision of Council as the appropriate body (or of a delegate of that body) to dismiss in the exercise of its powers under Part B;

(b) to any appeal arising in any proceedings, or out of any decision reached, under Part D other than appeals against disciplinary warnings under section 18;

(c) to any appeal against dismissal otherwise than in pursuance of Part B, D, E, or G;

(d) to any appeal against a disciplinary decision otherwise than in pursuance of Part D;

(e) to any appeal against a decision reached under Part E; and

(f) to any appeal against a decision reached by a tribunal under Part G; and 'appeal' and 'appellant' shall be construed accordingly.

(2) No appeal shall however lie against:

(a) a decision of Congregation under section 10 (2);

(b) any finding of fact of the Visitation Board under section 23 (1) save where, with the consent of the person or persons hearing the appeal, new evidence is called on behalf of the appellant at that hearing;

(c) any medical finding by a board set up under section 27 (3) save where, with the consent of the person appointed, new evidence is called on behalf of the appellant at that hearing.

(3) The parties to an appeal shall be the appellant, the Registrar, or a solicitor or other suitable person appointed by the Vice-Chancellor, and any other person added as a party at the direction of the Appeal Court.

41. A member of the academic staff shall institute an appeal by serving on the Registrar, within the time allowed under section 42, notice in writing setting out the grounds of the appeal.

42. (1) A notice of appeal shall be served within twenty-eight days of the date on which the document recording the decision appealed from was sent to the appellant or such longer period, if any, as the Appeal Court may determine under sub-section (3).
- (2) The Registrar shall bring any notice of appeal received (and the date when it was served) to the attention of Council and shall inform the appellant that he or she has done so.
- (3) Where the notice of appeal was served on the Registrar outside the twenty-eight-day period the Appeal Court shall not permit the appeal to proceed unless it considers that justice and fairness so require in the circumstances of the case.
43. (1) Where an appeal is instituted under this Part, it shall be heard and determined by the Appeal Court constituted under Statute XI.
- (2) The provisions of section 27¹ of Statute XI (appointment and functions of assessors) shall apply to appeals made to the Appeal Court under this Part.
44. (1) The procedure to be followed in respect of the preparation, consolidation, hearing, and determination of appeals shall be that set out in regulations made under this section.
- (2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, such regulations shall ensure:
- (a) that an appellant is entitled to be represented by another person, whether such person is legally qualified or not, in connection with and at any hearing of the appeal;
 - (b) that an appeal shall not be determined without an oral hearing at which the appellant and any person appointed to represent the appellant are entitled to be present and, with the consent of the person or persons hearing the appeal, to call witnesses;
 - (c) that full and sufficient provision is made for postponements, adjournments, dismissal of the appeal for want of prosecution, and for the correction of accidental errors; and
 - (d) that the Appeal Court may set appropriate time limits for each stage (including the hearing itself), to the intent that any appeal shall be heard and determined as expeditiously as is reasonably practicable.
- (3) The Appeal Court may allow or dismiss an appeal in whole or in part and, without prejudice to the foregoing, may:
- (a) remit an appeal from a decision under Part B (or any issue arising in the course of such an appeal) to Council as the appropriate body for further consideration as the Appeal Court may direct; or ¹ Following changes to Statute XI with effect from 1 October 2009, a consequential change has been made to the cross-reference in this sub-section. This change will be submitted for approval by Her Majesty in Council when the next substantive change to the statute is put forward.

- (b) remit an appeal arising under Part D for rehearing or reconsideration by the Visitation Board as the Appeal Court may direct; or
- (c) remit an appeal from a decision of the appropriate officer under Part E for further consideration as the Appeal Court may direct; or
- (d) remit an appeal by the Vice-Chancellor arising under Part G for rehearing or reconsideration by the same or by a differently constituted tribunal to be appointed under that Part; or
- (e) substitute any lesser alternative penalty that would under Part D have been open to the appropriate officer following a finding by the Visitation Board on the original charge or charges.

45. The Appeal Court shall send a reasoned decision, including any decision reached in exercise of its powers under section 44 (3) (a), (b), (c), or (d), on any appeal together with a statement of any findings of fact different from those of Council as the appropriate body under Part B, or of the Visitation Board under Part D, or of the Medical Board under Part E, or of the tribunal appointed under Part G, as the case may be, to the Vice-Chancellor (or, where the Vice-Chancellor is a party to the appeal, to the Chancellor) and to the parties to the appeal.
