Make an attempt to answer all the questions. Do not worry if you find you have little to say about some of the questions, or if you do not have technical terms for the features you wish to describe. While there are "right" and "wrong" answers (or several equally good answers), how you go about finding answers is as relevant to us as producing an answer which is completely correct.

Write your answers in the space provided on the paper. Please take care to write clearly. If you wish to write your notes on the paper, there is no need to cross them out. Total marks: 100.

Question 1: Production of Subject-Verb Agreement [34 marks].

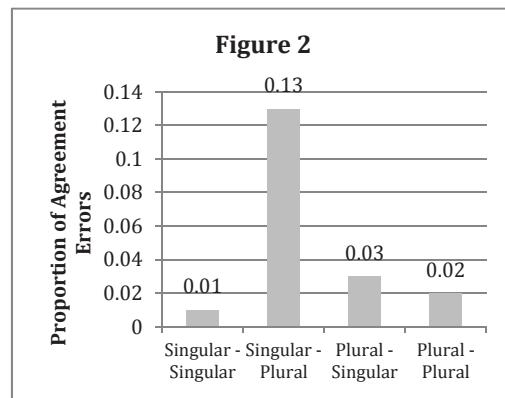

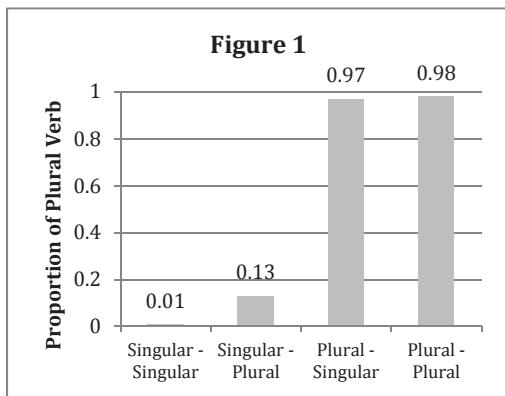

In English, number marking on the subject agrees with number marking on the verb (e.g. The key is.../The keys are...). In an experimental study on agreement production, speakers are asked to memorise a sentence fragment containing two number-marked nouns like those below, and then complete it with a form of be (e.g. ...is/are on the table). Sometimes speakers make agreement errors. The proportion of plural verbs speakers produced is shown in Figure 1 and the proportion of agreement errors they produced is shown in Figure 2.

Singular-Singular: The key to the cabinet...

Singular-Plural: The key to the cabinets...

Plural-Singular: The keys to the cabinet...

Plural-Plural: The keys to the cabinets...

- (a) With a singular subject, how much greater is the proportion of plural verbs when the second noun is plural than when the second noun is singular? [4 marks]

Question 2: Lummi [34 marks]. The following examples are from Lummi, a Native American language.

χčit sən cə swəy?qə?

'I know the man'

χčit sxʷ cə swəy?qə?

'You know the man.'

χčitorjəs sən

'I know you.'

χčitorjəs sxʷ

χčits cə swəy?qə? cə swi?qo?ət

'The man knows the boy.'

χčitŋ sən ə cə swəy?qə?

'I am known by the man.'

χčitŋ sxʷ ə cə swəy?qə?

'You are known by the man.'

χčitŋ cə swi?qo?ət ə cə swəy?qə?

'The boy is known by the man.'

(a) What do the following mean in English? [9 marks]

swi?qo?ət

sxʷ

orjəs

(b) What is the difference in meaning between the element t (in e.g. χčit) and the element tn (in χčitŋ)? [5 marks]

(c) State two ways in which the grammar of Lummi differs from English. [10 marks]

(d) State two ways in which the grammar of Lummi appears to be the same as English. [10 marks]

Question 3: Fantumese [32 marks].

In Table 1 below are words from two closely related dialects of Fantumese (an invented language), written in the phonetic alphabet. There are several ways in which the dialects differ in their sound patterns (“phonology”). You can assume all the patterns are regular.

Table 1

Northern Fantumese (NF)		Southern Fantumese (SF)		English gloss
Singular	Plural	Singular	Plural
mot	modi	mod	mudi	tooth
rarek		raleg	raligi	wolf
balop	balopi		balupi	computer
tarp		tarb		building tarap	tarabi	talab	talabi	house
nok		nok		candle
lurk	lurki		lurki	goose ron	romi	rom		daughter
dapen	dapeni	dapen	dapini	salary
	pimi		pimi	hand

The pronunciation of the consonants is close to those in English:

- [p, t, k, b, d, g] are called STOPS.
Of these, [p, t, k] are VOICELESS STOPS and [b, d, g] are VOICED STOPS.
- [m, n] are called NASALS.
- [l, r] are called LIQUIDS.

The vowels are a little different from English vowels but have close equivalents. Table 2 gives the nearest English equivalents and tells you the type of vowel:

Table 2

Fantumese	Nearest English equivalent	Type of vowel
[i]	‘eee’: as in beat	HIGH
[u]	‘uuu’: as in boo	HIGH
[e]	‘eh’: as in bed	MID
[o]	Between ‘oh’ and ‘aw’: Similar to awe and to Scottish English go	MID
[a]	‘a’ as in bad	LOW

- (a) Make a list of the rules that characterise the differences between Northern and Southern Fantumese, and provide examples of words that illustrate these rules. [12 marks]

- (b) Some words have been omitted from Table 1. Provide the missing words and give your reason for each answer. [20 marks]

The following questions are based on Noladi, an artificial language. Like English, Noladi has a fixed word order; unlike English, however, it does not mark definiteness (no difference between ‘the table’ and ‘a table’), nor does it distinguish simple from progressive tenses (‘goes’ = ‘is going’). Work out the meanings of the following sentences, individual words, and their components by reading carefully and considering the differences between similar forms. The exercises are built up gradually, so it is best to do them in order.

- (a) jego jabimi. I am walking.
 jileyu kuriyuti. They are running.
 zahaha lejavite wideti. The goose sees the ram.
 zamili zajekute juditi. The policewoman hears the mare.
 lepeso kenate kometi. The man is eating a meal.
 lemiliyu lepesote tereyuti. The policemen frighten the man.
 jegoyu jilete wideyumi. We see him.
 jileyu jegote fikiyuti. They shoot me.
 jego litete kibemi. I am writing a letter.
 kenayu jegote tereyuti. The meals frighten me.

Give the meaning of:

zapeso lemilit tereti. _____ [3]

zamili jegoyute fikiti. _____ [3]

Translate into Noladi:

The stallions eat the letters. _____ [3]

The ewes hear us. _____ [3]

- (b) zagaliyu habiyuti vilade. The hens live in the house.
 lepesoyu jabiyuti sivade. The men are walking in the forest.
 lemili vilade lebovite sivade fikiti. The soldier in the house shoots the bull in the forest.

zahasayu jeti lejaviyu zapesote potude wideyuti. The geese and the rams see the woman in the sea.

lepesoyu vilate fakeyuti jubide. The men are building a house in the city.

Answer PART A and ONE QUESTION ONLY FROM PART B.

Spend half an hour on each and do as much as you can within that time.

PART A

1. Read carefully through the following passage, and answer questions (a) and (b) below.

In actual fact, the problem of artistic quality is much like that of the quality and intensity of pain. Even while suffering pain no one is able to describe it accurately and clearly or to communicate any acquaintance with its quality or intensity. No one has ever discovered how to make a dependable measurement or description of the quality or intensity of pain. It is probable that there are few problems which have longer and more acutely bothered mankind. When a pain recurs, the person who has had it before can sometimes recognise it again, but it usually takes him some time to do so. Lacking such a recurrence, no one has ever been able to remember, to bring back, let alone to communicate, more than what may be called the label and the location of the pain. If more than that could be done, the human race would have died of a surfeit of pain almost as soon as it had begun to exist.

W M Ivins

- The author asserts that there is a likeness between 'the problem of artistic quality' and the quality and intensity of pain. What could such a likeness consist in?
- Argue briefly either FOR or AGAINST the conception of likeness between artistic quality and the quality and intensity of pain you sketched in part (a).

PART B

2. How does opinion relate to belief?
3. A Shakespeare play may be performed today, as far as possible, in the costume and pronunciation of the time of its production. It may also be ‘updated’ into language to match the speech and speech-forms of contemporary English; or translated into German; or given a setting quite unlike any which, we may suppose, Shakespeare could ever have envisaged. To what extent are any of these the same play? To what extent are any of these Shakespeare’s play?
4. “They all seem to have a motive, sir”, said Lewis, surveying the mangled remains of Jobsworth the Porter, “so the problem is whether the Bursar is telling the truth. I’m assuming of course that everyone is either lying, or telling the truth, but not both.” “Well done, Lewis!”, cried Morse. “In logic there are no surprises. And if the Bursar is telling the truth, so is the Chaplain.” “What’s more, sir”, said Lewis, “the Chaplain and the Dean have given conflicting statements, so they can’t both be telling the truth.” “Excellent, Lewis!”, exclaimed the great detective. “We’ll make a copper of you yet. But nor are the Dean and the Warden both lying. And if the Warden is telling the truth, the Chaplain isn’t.” “I think I follow that, sir. But we still don’t know if the bursar is lying.” [Bob Hargrave]

Giving the clearest reasoning for your conclusion possible, assess whether Lewis’s final claim, ‘But we still don’t know if the bursar is lying’, is true, if we accept the truth of the other claims made by Lewis and Morse.
